COLONEL LINDBERGH OUTWITS KIDNAPPERS

NEW SENSATION

THREAT TO KIDNAP SECOND BABY

TWO ARRESTS

TRAP LAID BY THE POLICE

New York, Feb. 9.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh have become the centre of another first-class sensation, threats having been made to kidnap their second baby son.

On this occasion, however, a trap was set into which the alleged criminals fell.

Two men were arrested at Rome, Virginia, to-day in connexion with the affair. They are to be charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Colonel Lindbergh by a threat to kidnap his six-months' old son.

HOUSE GUARDED

Following the demand, Col. Lindbergh communicated with the police. Special guards were concealed round Lindbergh's house to prevent a kidnapping attempt, while the pretence was kept up that Col. Lindbergh intended to meet the demand.

The police placed a cheque for $17,000 in the hollow stump of a tree in the neighbourhood, as Col. Lindbergh had been told to do.

CHEQUE CASHED

Several days ago a man cashed the cheque. This morning he was trailed and arrested when he was joined by a man who is alleged to be his confederate. Both suspects deny that they had anything to do with the kidnapping threat.

It is stated by Colonel Schwarzkopf, the chief of the New Jersey State Police, that the Roanoke affair has nothing to do with the murder of Lindbergh's first baby.—Reuter.

RECORD FLIGHT FEATURES

ENGINE'S PERFECT PERFORMANCE

London, Feb. 9.

The Air Ministry to-day received from Squadron Leader Gayford the complete log of the 5,340 miles record non-stop journey made in the Fairey Napier monoplane.

The log shows that very bad weather, including dust, haze, rain and heavy cloud, with poor visibility, was encountered over Africa, and during Tuesday night the airmen flew practically the whole time completely "blind".

Squadron Leader Gayford says the engine ran faultlessly for the 57 hours and 25 minutes they were in the air, and they did not experience one quail on its account throughout the whole flight.—British Wireless.

"TOTE" CLOSED ON DOG TRACKS

2,000 LONDONERS NOW OUT OF WORK

London, Feb. 9.

London's bookmakers are rejoicing over the fact that the "Totes" on all licensed greyhound racecourses in England and Wales closed yesterday, pending legislation following the Home Office statement in Parliament on Tuesday that "Totes" on dog tracks are at present illegal.

The employment of 2,000 workers in London and 15,000 in the Provinces is affected by the closing of the "Totes".—Reuter.

JAPANESE LODGING PROTEST

LATEST SHANGHAI DEVELOPMENT

ARMISTICE BREACH ALLEGED

Shanghai, Feb. 10.

The North China Daily News learns that the Japanese authorities in Shanghai are lodging a protest with the Mayor of Greater Shanghai to-day, concerning the movement of Chinese troops through the Shanghai districts.

The Japanese contend that the movement of troops constitutes a violation of the Armistice Agreement.

The Chinese contend that the Agreement does not apply in the instance under consideration, in which, they assert, only a small detachment was transported from Nanking to Hangchow.

The Chinese also claim that the Agreement whereby the Chinese troops were to remain "in their present position" was automatically cancelled when the Japanese troops withdrew and the situation was restored to normal.—Reuter.

DUTCH CABINET DEFEATED

POSSIBILITY OF RESIGNATION

The Hague, Feb. 9.

There is a possibility that the Cabinet will resign following an adverse vote in the Lower House on a Government Bill for the reorganisation of the Judiciary, the immediate discussion of which the Government made a matter of confidence.

The Opposition motion postponing discussion was passed by 51 votes to 38.

Efforts to reach a compromise are proceeding, but the Queen, who is in Switzerland, has been informed by telegraph of the possible fall of the Government.—Reuter.

Later.

The Cabinet crisis is due to Labour opposition to a Government Bill providing for the reorganisation of prisons for reasons of economy.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S CHINA MINISTER

AMBASSADOR RANK URGED

London, Feb. 10.

The raising of the British representative in China to the rank of Ambassador is suggested by Mr. O. M. Green in the course of an article in the Daily Telegraph.

Mr. Green says such a change would serve to smooth away many local misunderstandings which are most harmful to British interests. It would, moreover, please the Chinese and be a sign of our intentions in a country which must more and more become a chief centre of world interest.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

KNOWLEDGE OF WALTZSTEP IS ALWAYS ESSENTIAL TO GOOD DANCING

BY ARTHUR MURRAY

(This is the first of a series of articles on the newest dance steps, by Arthur Murray, famous instructor in ball-room dancing. The series will cover every phase of the modern dance—position, poise, basic steps and the intricacies of such glamorous dances as the Tango, the Rumba and the Lindy Hop.)

Don't let the new 1933 dancing give you an inferiority complex. If you know the five basic steps so that you can dance them alone, perfectly, you can pick up the new dances readily.

The five basic steps are the Waltz, the Chasse, the Pivot, the Balance and the Walking Steps. Learn them, one at a time, and dance them alone until you are step-perfect. Practise before a mirror, holding your arms bent at the elbow and raised almost level with your shoulders to give you likeness through the waist.

First, let us start with the Box Step, which is really two Waltz steps, one forward, and one backwards.

Master this Box Step so that when you start doing turns, you can do the steps mechanically. Here are the directions, illustrated by the diagram given to-day:

Arthur Murray is shown above demonstrating the graceful waltz step which is one of the basic steps towards proper dancing. The waltz may be learned by following the square turn diagram.

1. Step directly forward with the LEFT foot.
2. Right foot to right hand corner of box, as per diagram figure No. 2.
3. Close left foot up to right, with your weight on the left. This completes one Waltz Step.
4. Step straight back, with right foot.
5. Left foot to the lower left hand corner.
6. Close right foot up to the left foot, weight on right.

Repeat the above movements of six counts until you can do it easily and rapidly. Then turn on the radio and practise it again and again, to waltz music.

NEXT: The Chasse.

HOME-MADE SWEETS.

Cocoanut Ice.

Cocoanut ice is a delicious sweet, and costs very little. To two pounds of loaf sugar add half a pint of water, and boil in a saucepan until a little, dropped in cold water, forms a soft ball. Remove from the fire, and stir with a wooden spoon until the syrup threads.

Now add gradually six ounces of desiccated cocoanut, and stir until the mixture is fairly thick. Butter two tins, and pour half into one with a little lemon or vanilla essence. Pour the rest into the other tin with a few drops of cochineal added. Then work up the mixture into little cubes or balls of yellow, white, and pink respectively.

Marzipan

Marzipan is another very popular sweet. Take 3/4 pound of icing sugar, 1/2 pound of ground almonds, and one egg. Sieve the icing sugar, mix with the almond meal, and then add the egg, kneading well with the hands until it is a firm lump. Then work into various fruits and fancies.

Strawberries can be made by rolling the correctly shaped pieces of marzipan into a mixture of coarse sugar and strawberry coloured cochineal. Press each strawberry heavily into the mixture, so that the coarse crystals give the proper pitted effect. Cherries are made by rolling the marzipan into little balls, and painting them with a little cochineal dissolved in water. Stalks can be made of a thin strip of angelica.

Peppermint Creams and Fondants

Coloured cream fondants and peppermint creams always delight children. All that is required for making the fondant, the foundation of these sweets, is the white of an egg, a pound of sifted icing sugar, and a tablespoonful of water.

Pour the white of an egg into a soup plate, and add the water and icing sugar, stirring briskly until soft and pliable. Then knead well, and divide into three parts. Flavour one with vanilla, and colour with a few drops of cochineal. Flavour the second with vanilla, but do not colour it, and add peppermint essence to the third. Roll each piece into a long roll, cut into even slices, and leave for a few hours to harden.

Then with a rolling-pin press each slice out gently on to a piece of sugar-dusted paper, and cut out into all kinds of shapes—diamonds, squares, rounds, &c. A box of most fascinating Noah's Ark animals for young children can be made by cutting out, with a fine steel skewer, lions, pigs, ducks, &c., and adding eyes and noses with a quill pen dipped in cochineal.

Fudge

Fudge can be made by melting three tablespoonfuls of butter in a double boiler, adding three cupfuls of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate, and a cupful of milk. Mix well, and boil, then put to set on to a buttered tin. Chopped walnuts can be added if liked.

Turkish Delight

Turkish delight is a delicious sweet if made this way. Soak one ounce of gelatine for two hours in half a tencupful of cold water. Then boil two large cupfuls of sugar with a small cupful of boiling water and a teaspoonful of tartaric acid for five minutes. Add the juice of a lemon, a few drops of pink colouring, and pour over the gelatine. Stir well, and pour on to a buttered tin.

Crystallised Fruits

A box of crystallised fruits is a nice change. Put a pound of sugar, three gills of water, and a pinch of cream of tartar in a saucepan, melt slowly, and boil for five minutes. Stone the dates, grapes, orange quarters, &c.; stick each one on to a thin strip of wood, and dip into the boiling mixture. Lay on a sieve to dry.

GREAT NEW MYSTERY SERIAL

"WEEK-END MURDER"
BY GABRIEL F FORBUSH

CHAPTER XLVI

Linda heard the words as in a daze. "From our end of the hall—the nursery—" Statlander had said. It seemed as if he had shouted those words through the shattered quiet of the house.

She summed every ounce of courage she possessed and turned a smile of forced brilliance upon the somewhat astonished Mr. Statlander.

"Oh—yes—perhaps—I don't know," she gasped; then, as her blood seemed to circulate more normally and the room ceased its hysterical circling around her, she went on more coherently. "I'm sure no one actually slept in the nursery," she said politely. (As if it mattered—as if anything mattered but getting Tom back on getting to him and telling him!) "Anyone might have been asleep—less and restless and wandered in there, as you say, in search of a breath of air. Oh, Rosie—dinner is served? Mr. Statlander—would you—perhaps you'll wait here—I'll run over to the garage and tell Tom."

"Not at all!" He rose with stiff courtesy. "I will do that, Mrs. Averill. A pleasure. I assure you. Good evening, Mr. Pratt." And as Linda wildly tried to think of some excuse which should not be too futile to hold him, Marvin inopportunely appeared and her opportunity vanished.

Fortunately Marvin was unobtrusive. And, perhaps even more fortunate, he was feeling extremely well pleased with himself because of the outcome of the afternoon's game. Her part was purely a listening one.

"That was gorgeous, Marvin! Oh, I wish I could have seen it! Why didn't you tell me you were—" The mechanical phrases came to her urgent need. And from the corner of her eye she saw three figures leave the garage door and come across the lawn—Shaughnessy, Statlander, Tom.

She felt she was chattering a little hysterically. Tom, always sensitive to her mood, looked suddenly at her, then at Marvin and then grew very grave indeed.

"Oh, no, Tom—no!" She dared not breathe the word aloud though she too, receptive to his thought, knew instantly he had guessed the reason for her agitation, but misread its exciting cause. Before she could signal him to drop back a moment, her husband had executed a quick manoeuvre. It took him, with apparent interest and pleasure, beside the still happily unconscious Marvin, and, hand on arm, Tom marched into the dining room with the man he now considered he must watch every second, while Linda, thwarted, was left to follow with the other two.

What a stupid, dangerous mistake—but there was nothing she could do about it! In a way it was her fault and in a way it wasn't. Anyhow, she couldn't help it. She couldn't shout across the table, "Tom, you're mistaken! It isn't Marvin—it's DeVos!"

The meal was a nightmare. How she managed to keep from screaming aloud, from flying into violent hysterics as it proceeded on its chatty, informal course she never understood. Fortunately a ghost of their first evening arose to keep conversation animated and to absolve her of much responsibility. Some blithe, offhand statement of Shaughnessy's aroused Mr. Statlander's controversial craving for accuracy. A spirited argument ensued, into which both Tom and Marvin eventually were drawn. Its vehemence, however, lacked the acrimony of that dreadful dinner party three nights before, when poor Cousin Amos served as tinder to the ready anger of all the others. No, not quite all—discussion was concerned. Her mind flashed back and she saw again the still, contemptuous look of the man on her right, heard the cool venom of his tone. "We did those things better—the Congo—" The words rang through her brain, and this time her control quivered dangerously. If she should scream Tom wouldn't understand. There'd be trouble—and it might warn him! She laughed tremulously, eliciting a look of startled inquiry from Mr. Statlander who seemed to have been reading her a homily on the weakness of modern house construction.

Then on the steps came a light, quick tread. She felt she would have known its owner anywhere for all she had heard it so little. Something poised, something cut-like about it—the step of a tall, graceful, agile man, in perfect control of every muscle and nerve of his highly trained, beautiful body.

Then she saw her husband turning from Marvin with an air of suspended interest, look up, start some commonplace remark behind her, in the doorway, she could feel the graceful, indolent figure of the Belgian, ready now to leave. Half-rising, he fumbled his napkin, dropped it to the floor and stooped to pick it up. Incredibly nobody but herself seemed to feel the air of suspense—the horrible hovering of terror. Tom stood up, a little pale, she thought, rather than flushed by stooping, but quite himself. In fact, the smile he flashed at the newcomer was almost more warm and welcoming than an ordinary greeting.

"Be right with you, DeVos," he said and through his voice ran the same vibrant tone. Suddenly she heard the beat of drums the martial music that sends men forth to battle. "You're ready? Good! Linda, excuse me a moment—"

Then at last his eyes were toward her, and from her own flashed all the agonized warning she could put into a look. "He's the one!" her eyes said. Unbelievably, miraculously, in Tom's eyes she saw the same words, "He's the one!"

Then, an imperceptible second of warning over, Tom walked out the door with that lithe, lilted swing of his shoulders that again started the ring of battle music in her brain. Fighting the impulse to spring up and walk beside him—it would hurt more than it would help—she heard his voice, steady, friendly, apologetic.

"Sorry—I'll have to keep you race, ma'am?" Linda heard her-waiting just a moment, DeVos. I ran out the sedan but I'm not satisfied with the way the engine misfires and I think we'd better take the little roadster. No, don't bother—the road's dusty and the grass is damp. I'll run her back here in a jiffy. Just wait at the door."

But it was more than a jiffy before Linda, every nerve alert, heard the scurrying of gravel under arriving wheels. By the time Tom came they were all in the hall, talking, laughing, herself the centre of the little group, rallying the Belgian on his desertion of her, playing up to Marvin's evident exultation in his superior tennis skill, deferring to the cart finality of Mr. Statlander's analysis of the science of the game.

Then Tom appeared—smiling, apologetic. Would he go through with it? What had he been doing up in the garage all this time? "All ready, DeVos. Sorry. Hop in!"

The little blue roadster seemed so staunch, so unromantic, so much a part of her daily life. At the wheel, Tom flung her a smile to which she gaily responded—head up, pulse beating. The Belgian stepped in with one single, adroit movement; the door slammed. She stood watching until the little whirl of blue turned the corner of the road and disappeared into the dusk.

In the rather blank pause that followed, Rosie appeared with the tilted coffee table. "On the ter-self assent mechanically. Then the shrill ring of the telephone came and she motioned the others toward the lawn. "Go on out," she said. "I'll be right along."

But when they had gone and she dared pick up the instrument she was trembling so violently that she had to drop down on the bench in the hallway and steady her arm against the wall.

"Yes?" she said. "Yes? Yes!—yes, they've started..."

A click in her ear—the connection was broken.

She hung up the receiver and wiped her hands fastidiously with the little chiffon handkerchief which she found matted into a ball in one of them. Then she rose and went out on the terrace.

The little group awaited her around the coffee table by the low chair she liked. They were smoking and chattering, but all started to rise as she came near.

"Don't get up!" Her voice sounded strangely far away to her ears. She felt as if an aeon had passed since dinner had been ended. "I'll pour your coffee in a moment." She sank into the chair and smiled a little unsteadily. "I must tell you what's happened. I think—it's all right now—"

She saw their looks of polite, mystified interest. Only Shaughnessy sat alert and anxious.

"That was—police headquarters that rang up. When Tom went to the garage he telephoned them from there. They called back to—"

"GRAND HOTEL" MERITS ITS INTENSIVE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

HAND SELECTED CAST IN GOLD MEDAL FILM

By "Celluloid"

FORTISSIMO praise and panegyrics have spelled more box-office disasters than bad artistry, and the history of theatrical and cinematic production is strewn with the wrecks of good material that the public failed to support. It is the old story of anticipation and realization.

All of which concerns Grand Hotel, the M.G.M. muchboostered version of Vicki Baum's best-seller. Crowds queued up to book for the opening shows at the Queen's yesterday, and should continue their frantic rush to break long-distance run records here, for despite the ink that has been spilled on its publicity and the major keys in which its praises have been sung, the realization of Grand Hotel is worth the eager anticipation.

Of all the intensive Hollywood publicity campaigns, the fanfare that heralded Grand Hotel has probably sounded the farthest. Publicity writers began on it from the first moment it was suggested and each glittering star added to its cast provided additional fuel for their panegyric pens. Every incident in its making was seized on for propaganda. Critics took up the tale when it appeared and fresh superlatives almost had to be employed when the Hollywood Academy gave it the gold medal for the best production of 1932.

Never has a film had a higher value placed on it, and failure to come up to expectations might have been its fate. But Grand Hotel justifies the solid slabs of superlatives that have described it.

If for no other reason, the film earns its praises in its semblance to the original. Hollywood has been guilty of some terrible abortions in the past, and notwithstanding the difficulty in cramming the massive tome of Vicki Baum's novel into an hour and a half of celluloid, the makers have sent out as faithful a copy as possible. Readers of the book will enjoy the film. They will not care at any of the carefully selected cast.

Grand Hotel is definitely an "all-star" film: of the sextette of stars that ran production costs to seven figures, not one can be accused of dominating the sequences. The

JOHN Barrymore, and his famous profile, which he exploits fully in "Grand Hotel" at the Queen's.

If a selection of the best histrionic display were demanded, it would probably go to Wallace Beery or Lionel Barrymore. Beery as the industrial magnate is different to the rough-neck of Min and Bill and The Champ, while Lionel Barrymore, is extravagant in gesture as usual, and brother John exactly the same impudent rascal as Arsene Lupin.

Continuity is where Grand Hotel scores as a story: scenario writers have linked its many scenes together into a smooth running plot and director Edmund Goulding has carried it out with correct attention to tempo.

MICROPHONE MAGNETS.

TWTH biggest names in the American radio world have been gathered together to make The Big Broadcast something new in musical films. What headlines Paramount have collected! The great Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, Burns and Allen, Cal Calloway, the Boswell Sisters, the Mills Brothers and the Vincent Lopez orchestra. Most of them are strangers here but their names are on thousands of gramophone records and their radio audiences must number millions.

A delightful original musical spectacle, The Big Broadcast is a lesson in showmanship by the Hollywood pastmasters. The most popular personalities in broadcasting have been brought together in one glittering compact entertainment.

But it is not all harmony and hullaboo. The story which welds the artists together is highly ingenious and contains the correct amalgamation of humour and sentiment. Apart from the radio singers, Stuart Erwin is the star. Of the performers, Bing Crosby's admirers will be well satisfied. The Big Broadcast is the Sunday attraction at the King's.

LOOPS AND LOOPS.

THE "Last Post" of the war film seems to have sounded the "Reveille of the air stunting production. Air Mail, due at the Central to-morrow sings the praise of the heroes of the U. S. Government mail in an airport, allegedly miles from anywhere. There is a crowd of rough human pilots, flying the usual race with death, spectacular aerial shots that almost reach the standard of Hell's Angels and Hell Divers, and, of course, respective love affairs.

Ralph Bellamy is the head man, supported by Pat O'Brien, Russell Hopton, Slim Sumner, Gloria Stuart and Lillian Bond.

MURDER WILL OUT.

THE makers of The Woman in Room 13, now at the King's, were evidently in a quandary whether to make it a mystery or, as seems to be the prevailing

With the mystery gone, the story depends on the acting of the principals, and while they all make their exits and entrance in accordance with the best Hollywood tradition, there seems a lack of sustaining interest.

Happily, Elissa Landi has a second lead a better part. An usual she is the mystery woman, the same as other films, but has a better chance to show her undoubted artistry.

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done, 1,080,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports—Union Pacific declared a $1 dividend which is the same rate declared for the three preceding quarters. This declaration strengthened the entire market causing shorts to cover vigorously in some recently weak issues. Later the market declined moderately due to a dip in wheat caused by reports of continued cold over the winter belt.

Brokers' loans were reported at $429,000,000 a decrease of $30,000,000 from last week's figure of $459,000,000.

Time money was quoted at 3 1/2% for 60 and 90 days.

COURT WATCHMAN
GAOLEDTHEFT OF SEIZED
GOODS

A bold and ambitious attempt by a Supreme Court bailiff to spirit away the whole stock of a Chinese earthenware shop, seized under an order of the Court, was disclosed at the Central Magistracy to-day, when Ng Yu, the man in question, appeared before Mr. Schofield on a charge of larceny by bailie.

Ng Yu was charged with stealing 134 spittoons, 67 chetties, 11 basins, and 346 earthenware cash boxes. He pleaded guilty.

Det. Sgt. Kinnear said that, along with others not in custody, defendant removed the goods from a godown in Centre Street into another, the proprietor of which was without suspicion in view of the defendant's capacity as a bailiff's watchman.

Although the goods were of a bulky and cumbersome nature and entailed much labour in moving, their value amounted to less than $50.

Defendant, who admitted a previous conviction, less than three years ago also for larceny, was sentenced to four months' hard labour.

LLOYD BARRAGE
SUCCESSINCREASE IN AREA
IRRIGATED

London, Feb. 9. The Lloyd Barrage at Sukkur in India, has now been open for just over a year, during which time practically all the main canal has been in operation.

Despite the difficulties of changing from the old irrigation system, the first year's results have been satisfactory, the total area irrigated before and after the main south-west monsoon being nearly two million acres, an increase of 166,000 acres over the pre-barrage average.

Sales of land in the barrage area are proceeding satisfactorily, and extensive rail and road developments have been or are being undertaken.—British Wireless.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN
GALSWORTHYMEMORIAL SERVICE IN ABBEY

London, Feb. 9. The Prime Minister and other ministers were among the many prominent figures in national life present to-day at the memorial service in Westminster Abbey to John Galsworthy, the famous novelist and dramatist.

The Dean of Westminster described Galsworthy's life as freely spent in helping those in need and in the cause of peace and goodwill, and said his work had enriched the reputation and influence of English literature throughout the civilised world.—British Wireless.

CHINESE FORCES
CROSS BORDER.VILLAGES ATTACKED IN MUKDEN PROVINCE

Tokyo, Feb. 9. Messages from Chinchow state that a thousand Chinese regulars are reported to have crossed the Jehol border and penetrated into Mukden Province.

They attacked and set fire to two villages this morning. The Japanese garrison has been despatched on a punitive expedition.—Reuter.

The mile long Lloyd Barrage at Sukkur, India, which harnesses the waters of the River Indus, has now been in operation for a year, and has resulted in a large increase in the area under irrigation. It took eight years to complete, and is seen above just before its opening.

NEW FORMULA

FURTHER HOPES OF SETTLEMENT

Geneva, Feb. 9. The Committee of Nineteen will examine to-day the latest Japanese counter proposals. It is believed that a new formula, whereby Japan would note the non-recognition of Manchukuo by other Powers might provide a basis for settlement.

On the other hand, the Chinese are increasingly incensed by the fresh suggestions, amending the Committee's draft resolution. Recognition of Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria was the central point of discussion by the Committee of Nineteen this morning. Dealing with the latest Japanese proposals the Committee decided to ask Japan for a definite answer whether she would unequivocally accept the proposition that the existing regime in Manchukuo does not constitute a solution of the problem.

Threatened operations at Jehol were also lengthily discussed. Meanwhile the drafting sub-committee is still occupied in framing recommendations to the assembly.—Reuter.

Report Incomplete.

Geneva, Feb. 8. The Committee of Nine adjourned its meeting at 12.30 p.m., having made progress in the drafting work, although the Report is still by no means complete and may necessitate one or two further meetings.

The Japanese proposals were not discussed. They will probably form the subject of a special meeting of the Committee of Nineteen within the next few days. At the meeting Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General, announced receipt of the new Japanese proposals, but they were not communicated to the meeting, having been sent to the hotels where the various delegates are staying.

There seems to be a general impression that the proposals will afford a basis for understanding, although further modification will be necessary. Under these circumstances it will not be surprising if the discussion is not very conclusive.

The draft scheme of recommendations submitted by the Secretariat underwent severe amendment and the meeting had not reached a decision on several points. One of the delegates of the Committee of Nine said that they will require at least two or more meetings to reach an agreement. This morning's draft was based on the ten principles of the Lytton Report.

Difficulty in Drafting.

Indication of the delicacy of the situation, hovering between Paragraphs Three and Four of Article 15 of the League Covenant is the unusual reticence on the part of all members of the Committee of Nine and is giving ground for speculative deductions. The point on which difficulty arose, it is reported, concerned the form in which Japan's special interests in Manchuria, like her railways, be recognized.

Chinese Communication.

A Chinese Communiqué was handed to the members of the Committee of Nine this morning. The Communiqué contends that neither in the communication made to the Chinese Delegation was it made clear (as the Communiqué issued on January 21, was it made clear (as the Communiqué of February 4 says) that the Committee intended to offer definite acceptance of the rights of China and Japan to make reservation in connexion with the Exposé de Motifs.

During the course of an interview with the President of the Committee and the Secretary-General on January 29 the Chinese Delegation emphasised their objection to the weakening of the original texts. The Delegation had insisted that the principle of non-recognition of Manchukuo be explicitly stated and that the proceeding on any other basis would not have any reasonable chance of a successful outcome.

Committee's Discussion.

According to reliable information, the Committee of Nine this morning dealt with the first four paragraphs of its recommendations separately before reaching an agreement with the fifth paragraph which, in some respects, is the most important of all.

The first paragraph deals with the general principles involved, especially in respect of the League Covenant, the Kellogg Pact and the Nine Power Treaty.

The second paragraph treats with the general attitude of the League towards the dispute with especial reference to the League Covenant. It emphasises the obligation to respect Treaties and the necessity to respect territorial integrity and independence.

Paragraph three also deals with the general principles and lays down that the question at issue cannot be settled by force; it must be treated in accordance with the general principles underlying the League Covenant.

Paragraph four deals with the procedure to be followed to effect a solution, and particularly lays down that there should be no recognition of the present regime in Manchuria, nor a return to the Status Quo obtaining before the year 1931.

Paragraph five deals with the negotiating organ which will associate members of the League, non-members and the parties to the dispute (China and Japan) in subsequent developments following the failure of conciliation.

Although the discussion on this paragraph was not completed, there was general agreement that some such body will have to be constituted to supervise the execution of the recommendations.

The subject of the matter dealt

TRADE ON DISPLAY.

PREPARING FOR BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR

London, Feb. 9.

The British Industries Fair, which will open on February 20, would prove that British industry was very much alive, declared Mr. Colville, Secretary of the Overseas Trade Department to-day. The fair would have a gross stand area of 64,500 square metres, compared with 8,700 at the first fair in 1915. Staging the vast display over 80 industries was an excellent tonic for the trade depression. Seventeen countries were granting concessions to buyers.

Promises from overseas buyers to visit the fair had risen nearly 100 per cent. compared with the previous year.

British manufacturers were providing new improved goods, specially adapted for overseas requirements, with prices at sterling standard being remarkably low.—Reuter's Special.

with this morning constitutes about half of the recommendations and another two meetings are expected to be necessary to dispose of the balance of the recommendations. The meeting of the Committee of Nineteen tomorrow, however, when the Japanese amendments will be discussed, may alter the whole situation.

The general atmosphere has much improved by the latest proposals, but it is improbable that they will be accepted entirely. Also the effect of Chinese opposition to any concessions must not be overlooked.—Reuter.

CHINA OBJECTS.

Nanking Opposes New Japanese Proposals.

Nanking, Feb. 9. Official circles here express strong dissatisfaction with reports from Geneva concerning the new Japanese proposals. They object, particularly the offer made by the Committee of Nineteen to abandon the invitation to the United States and Russia to participate in the work of conciliation, and also to the suggestion that Japan may make reservations in regard to the Exposé de Motifs.

The Chinese Delegation at Geneva has been instructed to voice a vigorous opposition to these concessions.

The Chinese authorities keenly resent the present conversations between the League and Japan alone on a compromise in the formula, while the opinion is held that if the United States and Russia are not invited to participate, the resolution will be considerably weakened.

The Chinese Government is firmly convinced that the League should proceed with the drafting of the Report to the Assembly and "cease to yield to Japan."—Reuter.

Korean Problem.

Geneva, Feb. 8. Professing to speak on behalf of the 23,000,000 "suffering and protesting Koreans," the "President of the Provisional Government of the Korean Republic" who is at present in Geneva, has written to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General, declaring that no solution of the Sino-Japanese dispute which ignores the Korean problem can be lasting and permanent.

The "President" appends quotations from the Lytton Report with the object of showing that the problems of Manchuria and Korea are inextricably interwoven.—Reuter.

DEBACLE OF THE CLUB

AMAZING GAME AT H.K.C.C.

FINE BOWLING BY NOMANBHOY

(By "The Stumper")

BY defeating the formidable Hongkong C.C. last Saturday, the Indians' chances of retaining the Shield have been considerably improved. For a while one would have to go far to see a better game. Nobody, least of all the Indians I am sure, expected the strong Club batting to collapse for a mere 41 runs. Pereira, their fast bowler, the Indians owed their victory, for he claimed five wickets for only 13 runs besides sending T.A. Pearce, K.A. Munro and O.E.C. Marton back to the pavilion with successive balls to perform the first "hat-trick" of the senior League during the current season.

THE Indian skipper won the toss and decided to send the Club in first. Thrills came almost at once. Owen Hughes was dropped off Pereira at slips, but he did not stay long, poking a ball to the same position off him in the next over. Hayward made a stubborn resistance against the Indians' attack, and refused to be fured to lift his bat. He stayed in long enough to see Pereira, Munro and Marton being dismissed with successive balls by Pereira, who was bowling at a great speed. In trying to hit the fast bowler, Pearce was caught at mid-on, while Munro was sent back by a ball which was too fast for him. The last ball was a beauty. Marton, thinking it was going outside the off stump let it go past, but it broke in just enough to touch the off stump.

IF the champions thought victory was easy they were completely deceived. With this low score before them, they had to fight hard for every run and eventually won by only three wickets. A.C. Beck was obtaining a great pace off the pitch and was responsible for the dismissal of five Indian wickets for only 16 runs. It was a hard battle all the way; as it was the Indians were all out for 71.

THE best bowling performance of the day, however, came from another quarter. A.T. Nomanbhoi, playing for the University against the Navy at King's Park, captured six wickets for only ten runs. It was a remarkable feat, and has not been surpassed in senior League cricket for a long time. Possessed of a low action, Nomanbhoi needs careful watching on his day, but has not come off recently. He was relegated to the second string a few weeks ago, but I am glad the University skipper has seen fit to reinstate him.

DUE chiefly to Nomanbhoi's effort, the Navy were dismissed for only 20 runs. With no statistics before me, I cannot say whether this is a record in senior League cricket, but I know there has not been a lower score for some years. In a very weak, however, several members making their initial appearances in local League matches. Two undergraduates won by ten wickets, thus registering their second successive victory.

VISITING the Civil Service C.C., the Kowloon C.C. were given a fright when, facing a total of 100, they lost seven wickets for only 61. F.S.W. Smith and G.C. Burnett then came to the rescue of their side and knocked off the necessary runs without further loss. The Kowloon men will have a lot to say regarding the domination of the Shield. They have jumped over a few stiff hurdles, but have yet to meet the Indians. This will take place next month and may prove to be the deciding game. It will be worth going far to see.

HITHERTO regarded as the best batsman in the Second Division, the Indians, jeopardized their chances by being held to draw by the Hongkong C.C. last week. This game provided as much excitement as the senior match, and one could probably say that if it had lasted for another five minutes, the champions would have won. The Club had their last man in with over 20 runs to make, and way was plainly uncomfortable as the game was drawn.

REGARDING the drawing of stumps in February, I have spoken to the Hon. Secretary of the League, and he informs me that the time of drawing is 8.05 p.m. This should be remembered by team captains.

EASY TASK FOR THE BORDERERS

FORLORN QUEST OF THE CLUB

CAN THEY AVENGE LEAGUE DEFEATS?

IMPREATIVE NEED OF IMPROVED TEAM PLAY

THE PROSPECTS

TO-morrow's senior football clashes are but an encore to last Saturday's programme, except that the self same teams will be contesting for progress in the Senior Shield competition, instead of league points.

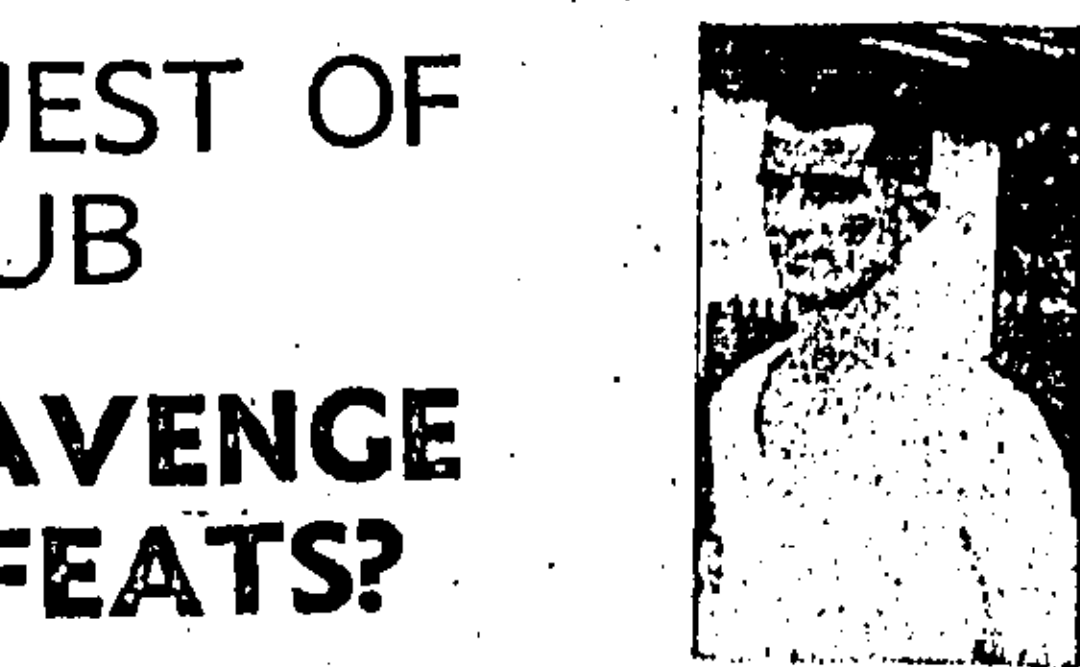

The programme, in fact, is a typical example of the long arm of coincidence. A week ago the Borderers and Club met for their second league encounter. To-morrow they fight again. The Navy and Police were antagonists for league honours seven days ago, and they give a repeat performance in twenty-four hours time. That the Club should run up against their big bogey in the Senior Shield will rouse the sympathy of many, for it means that their quest is almost hopeless.

Not by the wildest stretch of imagination, or the most generous reflection on the merits of the Club as a team, can one seriously anticipate their success against the 24th.

WHAT IS NECESSARY.

The soldiers have twice proved this season that they are too good for the civilians. Of course, the Borderers in the Club side, which I believe, are being considered, may have some effect in the desired direction, although I am inclined to think that change in the personnel is not so necessary, as change in tactics on the part of the present team.

I have more than once this season endeavored to analyse the Club's play, and last week's showing did nothing to alter the views expressed; if anything they were emphasised. If they can possibly pull themselves together and become a unified team, with individualism reduced to the

EYES ON THE SHIELD—These

L.C.D. of the game, namely as a means of creating constructive opposition, then the Club might well give the Borderers something to think about.

WATCH JONES.

And then of course, there is their line-up regarding the activities of Jones, the "Swob" inside left, who last week made rings round the defence. If the Club are to reduce the goal-scoring potentialities of the Borderers to a minimum, they have got to police Jones as far as it is reasonable without leaving the rest of the forward unattended.

The Borderers will take the field full of confidence, and come what may, I expect them to win quite easily. They regained something like their old time form last Saturday, and it is fair to anticipate that this will be reproduced in the Shield tie.

sentinal, such as understanding between the players, are lacking. A forward line weakness must be rectified if the Navy are to retain any direct interest in the Shield.

Five games are scheduled in the Junior Shield competition, and one of them, as they say in Australia, is a "snifter." The Borderers and Royal Artillery, who are both in the running for runners-up of Division 2 meet at Soekunpoo.

GUNNERS' OPPORTUNITY.

And please don't take too much notice of the fact that on October 8, 1932 the Borderers beat the Artillery 4-1 and on December 24, 1932, they 4-1. The Artillery these days are an entirely different proposition. Since their second reverse at the hands of the 24th they have beaten the Athletic, the Lincolns and the Navy, and if they persist in the same type of game, they will probably win to-morrow.

Ground advantage to either side is negligible, and the outcome will depend entirely on a question of skill, plus adaptability to the conditions which always prevail in knock-out competition football.

How Tsui Won't Win the Championship!

Amazing Exhibition of Futility

NEARLY BEATEN BY CAPT. CANNON

Loser's Remarkable Recovery

(By "VERITAS").

Faced with an opponent at the top of his form, yet persisting in his game of playing to the gallery, Tsui Wai-pui, one of the "fancied" for the Open Tennis Singles title this year, yesterday nearly came a cropper at the first fence, when taken to a three set match by Capt. P. S. Cannon.

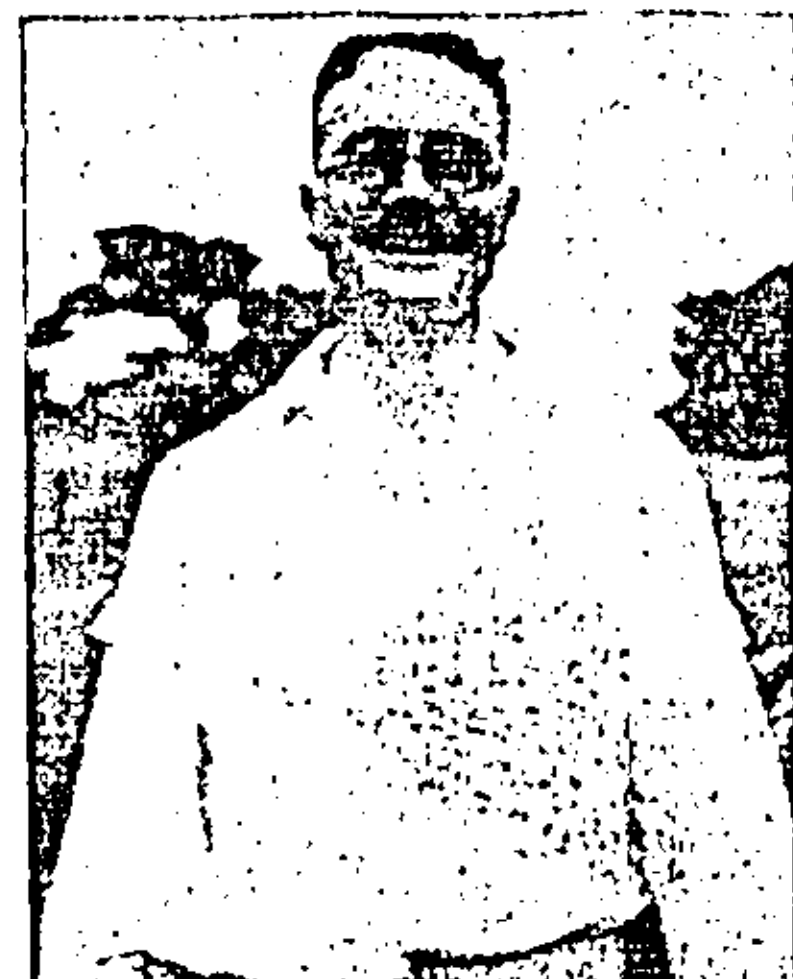

Tsui deserved to lose. He allowed a 6-1 victory in the first set to go to his head, fell to relying on fancy strokes to give him winning points, and only after finding himself in arrears in the final set, forsook this untimely practice and settled down to serious tennis.

Displays such as this will do the young Chinese no good. He cannot afford to play about in tournament tennis any more than another player. He may possess the most complete range of strokes in Hongkong but if he is going to abandon them for a few pretty-pretty, but totally ineffective shots, then their value is negligible.

Nobody is going to deny the usefulness of variation in strokes, but this variation has to be made in a subtle manner, and not into a mere display of ostentatious cleverness which leaves the performer open to a more deadly counter attack from the other side of the net.

TSUI OVERSHADOWED.

A big crowd was held spellbound by the match yesterday, for all credit is due to Capt. Cannon for the gallant manner in which he fought back after a severe reverse in the opening set and for the way he seized his opportunities in a great effort to snatch the match.

In the second set Tsui was quite overshadowed. Cannon, with his masterly backhand drive (it is the soundest stroke I have seen among local players), continually defeated the Chinese in the rallies, polishing them off with ace shots which flew past the incoming Tsui.

Capt. Cannon is one of the few players in Hongkong who prefer to take the ball on the backhand. This is his strongest weapon, and for him, it was a thousand pities that he could not boast a similar forehead.

Even so his weakness was only the weakness of one who could not attack on this hand. But Cannon's great asset was his courtcraft, which was seen in its most effective form in the second set. He hardly ever attempted to hit really hard, but lured Tsui up to the net with short cut shots, and then raised him with delightfully placed balls.

When he went to the lead in the fifth game of the final set, Tsui was positively worried, and only a sticky net cord shot, and a doubtful service decision in his favour allowed him to draw level, and from that point he played something like his true self (Continued on Page 9.)

FOURTH "TEST" TO-DAY

HISTORICAL GAME PROMISED AT BRISBANE

THE fourth, and probably the most vital Test Match between Australia and England starts at Brisbane to-day, and despite the conciliatory notes which have been exchanged between the Australian Board of Control and the M.C.C., regarding the Body line bowling protest, the teams will enter the arena with this friction still in their minds.

At the time of writing neither team has been definitely selected, although it is probable that the English side will be constituted as follows: D.R. Jardine, R.E.S. Wyatt, G.O. Allen, Hammond, Sutcliffe, Ames, Lardou, Howes, Leyland, Paynter and Verity.

The Australian eleven will certainly include some entirely new players, for both J.H. Fingleton and Charlie Grimmer have been dropped. If Ernest Bromley is finally chosen, his will probably be the most sensational introduction to Test cricket on record. It was only in December last that Bromley forced his way into the Victoria Inter-State team. Prior to that he had played in Pennant cricket, and had been such a successful but and excellent field, that efforts were made to find him a place in the Victoria team last November.

BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT.

He achieved this ambition a month later, and since his first match has played six innings and scored no less than 645 runs. Bromley is only 22 years ago and was educated at the Christian Brothers' College, Perth. In view of Oldfield's continued indisposition, H.S. Love is a certainty for wicket-keeping. The Australian team will be chosen from: W.W. Woodley, W.H. Ponsford, Y.Y. Richardson, D.G. Bradman, E. Bromley, L. Darling, W.J. O'Reilly, S.J. McCabe, T. Wall, H. Iroumner and H.S. Love. B. Tobin has already been selected as twelfth man. Unlike Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide, the Brisbane ground has no historical Test Match traditions. Only one match has so far been played between Australia and England at Brisbane. This was in 1928-9, when in the first encounter of the series, England won by 876 runs. In that match England scored 521 in the first innings and 342 for 8 declared in the second. Australia hit 122 in the first innings and were dismissed for 60 in the second. During the match, Henderson scored 160, so far the only Test century in the England v Australia series to have been made at Brisbane, and with Larwood, established an English Test record score of 124 for the eighth wicket.

AMAZING LARWOOD.

Larwood had an astonishing match. In addition to scoring 70 in the first knock and 37 in the second, he enjoyed the following bowling successes:

	O	M	R	Wkts
1st Innings	14.4	0	32	6
2nd Innings	7	0	30	2

Jardine also played in this game and in the second innings hit up 65 not out, whilst A. P. F. Chapman, who was captain of the team, scored 60 in the first innings. "Farmer" White, the Somerset slow bowler achieved the most remarkable performance of the match, when in helping to dismiss Australia for 60, had the final figures of:

	O	M	R	Wkts
1st Innings	14.4	0	32	6
2nd Innings	7	0	30	2

CLAIM FOR WAGES ADVERTISING SALESMAN AND VERBAL CONTRACT

Harry Arthur Love, an advertising salesman, of No. 4, Hankow Road, successfully claimed for wages and commission due to him from the United Publicity and Advertising Company, Ltd., of Asiatic Building, at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon, before the Paine Judge (Mr. Justice Wood).

Plaintiff claimed from the defendant the sum of $516.10, being as to $105 earned by plaintiff from September 15 to October 5, 1932, at $150 a month under verbal contract made between plaintiff and the defendant, and $411.10 commission due to the plaintiff on business introduced by him either to the defendant or to their predecessors in business; $160, one month's wages in lieu of notice, the plaintiff having wrongfully been dismissed on October 5; and $150 further damages for wrongful dismissal, being the estimated amount of commission which the plaintiff would have earned had he received from the defendant one month's notice to which he was entitled.

Mr. G. S. Ford (Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist) appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. P. H. Sin (Messrs. A. E. Hall) for the defendant.

Terms of Contract.
In evidence, plaintiff stated that he was engaged by the United Publicity and Advertising Co. about September 13 last by a Mr. Hellvig, then manager. The terms of the contract, which was verbal, were that his salary was to be $150 a month and commission at 10 per cent. on contracts secured. He was dismissed on October 5 by a Mr. Cheng, then manager. On that date he asked for his salary for September but it was refused him. Mr. Cheng stating that he was under a misapprehension as to the terms agreed. A different outline of salary and commission had been worked out and he was to work under that outline. Witness refused to work under the new terms. During his period of employment he had brought in contracts worth $171 and $1,140 respectively.

Answering Mr. Sin, witness agreed there was no written contract. He was taken on at three months probation to be terminated by one month's notice on either side.

Mr. A. B. Harrison, service manager of Messrs. Wallace Harper, gave evidence of introducing plaintiff to Mr. Hellvig and the terms agreed to Advertising Contracts Cancelled.

At the time.
Cheng Shi-man, employee of the defendant firm, stated he was formerly employed as acting manager of the United Publicity and Advertising Company, and when the business was transferred to the United Publicity and Advertising Co. Ltd., he was employed by the new company. He was not present when the contract was made with plaintiff, but the terms were told him by Mr. Hellvig. In October when plaintiff demanded his salary and commission he refused to pay him, stating that it was the rule of the company that no commission would be paid until the money was received for the contracts. The two advertising contracts had been cancelled.

Mr. Wallace Harper stated that the advertising contracts were entered into by him, and when the business was transferred he notified the firm of his intention of cancelling the contracts. Plaintiff told him when he secured the contracts that he was on trial.

Mr. Sin contended that there was no contract of service between plaintiff and the defendant, but his Lordship stated the plaintiff's evidence had not been contradicted. "I think that by your own act you deprived the plaintiff of this commission, so it does not matter when the commission was payable," he added.

His Lordship gave judgment for

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

American's leading radio stars make their bow to the movie public in company with a cast of screen favourites in "The Big Broadcast" on Sunday. Bing Crosby, air ace, with Stuart Erwin and Leila Hyams, screen players, head the cast of the production. Kate Smith, the Boston well Slater, the Mills Brothers, Cab Calloway and his Orchestra, Burns and Lopez, and Arthur Tracy (The Street Singer) head the radio cast. The picture does not depend for its effectiveness on the mere presence of names, however. A definite plot holds it together. It has to do with Crosby's affair with Sharon Lynne, which he takes so seriously that he never gets to the studio in time to broadcast. He loses his job, much to the dismay not only of himself, but of Miss Hyams, who is rather fond of him. But his dismay is even greater when Miss Lynne marries a broker, leaving him flat! At this point—first because Miss Hyams has abandoned him; second because a "dame from Dallas" has taken them for $100,000. But when he finds that Miss Hyams is infatuated with Crosby, he spends his remaining $500.00 buying the station and a network to restore Bing to his job and make Leila happy. This leads to further amusing consequences which are straightened by means of a big broadcast in which all the stars participate.

"Air Mail"
"The mail goes through! And the courage, skill, and intrepid flying it takes to make this motto of the air mail fleet good provides the thrilling theme of Universal's great aviation classic, "Air Mail," which opens an engagement at the Central Theatre to-morrow, treating the audience to some of the most spectacular flying scenes ever witnessed on the screen. There have been aviation pictures before, but none that have presented the story of the unsung heroes of the government mail as "Air Mail" does. One of the most essentially dramatic phases of flying, the air mail provides a substantial, gripping and romantic theme around which has been woven a very human story of devotion to duty and sacrifice with characters that live on the screen. Action, thrills, suspense, and story interest combine to make "Air Mail" a departure from the ordinary run of movie fare. It is something to see.

"The Woman in Room 13"
Film fans who have been clamouring for more Elissa Landi screen stories will find their answer at the King's Theatre where "The Woman in Room 13," her latest Fox emotional drama, is now playing. In this stirring portrayal of a pretty young divorcee's fight to make her break from a revengeful ex-husband and a clean one, Miss Landi is revealed as an actress of a substantial, gripping and romantic theme around which has been woven a very human story of devotion to duty and sacrifice with characters that live on the screen. Action, thrills, suspense, and story interest combine to make "Air Mail" a departure from the ordinary run of movie fare. It is something to see.

On the application of Mr. Sin, it was agreed to set off the sum of $84, costs due from plaintiff to the defendant in a previous action when plaintiff was non-suited.

"WEEK-END MURDER"

"verify it." She saw the mystification change to shocked surprise. "Excuse me—I'm going at it backwards—I haven't quite taken it in myself. They've started out to meet Tom and Mr. DeVos. He—he'll have to miss his dinner at the White House Inn. He's going to be arrested—for murdering Cousin Amos."

Shaughnessy, watching her, and sprung forward none too quickly. For this time she had fainted in real earnest.

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

This is the last of three articles by Mr. McKenney on the "Rule of Eleven."

Following are additional examples applying the rule of eleven. As was the case in my previous article, South is the declarer at no trump, North the dummy, West is the opening leader and the card led is in parenthesis. East is the partner of the leader.

Example No. 3

Allowing partner to hold trick.

North—Dummy

K-6-4.

West—Leader East—Partner

Q-10-8-(7) A-J-9-5

South—Declarer

3-2

West opens the seven spot. Applying the rule of eleven, seven from eleven leaves four. There is one in the dummy and three in East's hand, therefore the declarer holds no card higher than the seven spot.

If dummy plays a small card, East should play the five spot, allowing his partner to hold the trick. The king will be captured on the next lead of the same suit by West.

Example No. 4

Refusing to play high third hand.

North—Dummy

K-8-4

West—Leader East—Partner

J-9-7-(6) A-10-5

South—Declarer

Q-3-2

West's opening is the six spot. Six from eleven leaves five. There are two in the dummy and two in the East hand, therefore East knows the declarer holds one card higher than the six.

If dummy now plays the eight, East should not play the ace, but should play the ten, which would force the declarer's queen, and in this manner the declarer would get only one trick.

If East were to go up with the ace, he knows that he is absolutely setting a trick in dummy for the declarer, and if the declarer does happen to hold the queen, he would be setting two tricks, as would be the case in this example.

Example No. 5

Where it works to the advantage of the declarer.

North—Dummy

K-J-6

West—Leader East—Partner

Q-9-7-(6) 10-3-2

South—Declarer

A-8-4

West opens the five spot. Dummy should play the six spot, which forces East's ten.

The declarer now wins with the ace and can safely take the finesse, as by applying the rule of eleven—five from eleven leaves six—he knows that as there are three in dummy and declarer holds two and the one that East held was forced on the first trick, the queen is in the West hand.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS ON ECONOMICS.

"BUSINESSLIKE CHARITY" FOR HOUSING SCHEMES

The Bishop of Victoria (the Rt. Rev. Ronald Hall) was the guest of honour at the weekly luncheon of the Y's Men's Club held at Lane, Crawford's Restaurant, Exchange Building, yesterday.

In the course of an address, he referred to the cause of the present trade depression as something akin to the parson with the empty church. He was warmly thanked at the conclusion by the Chairman, Dr. Phoon Sek-wa.

The Bishop of Victoria said: I want to compare your business with mine. If you find an empty Church and you ask the parson why, he may tell you "It's only a passing depression." But you will say to yourself: "No, not a passing depression but a depressing parson." (Laughter).

But yet you businessmen dare to stand up to us parsons to say your economic stagnation is a trade depression. You are as much to blame for it as the parsons with the empty churches. I don't believe there has been a failure in intelligence.

Easy Money.

In the past generations money was too easily made. So men did not stop to think what money was for—only how to make more of it. Fortunately, necessity is the mother of invention. At last, necessity is compelling economists to consider what money is for.

In the Church we are a bit ahead of you. Our depression came earlier. In many places it is already passing. But it is only passing in those places where the parson blames himself and not others. Because the depression in my profession is beginning to pass, I am going to be bold and tell you that it will only pass in your profession when you begin to blame yourself and not War Debts or American Banks or the trade cycle.

I have found as I have gone around Churches in England that the parsons who were doing their job have a common factor. They are sensitive on the one hand, to people's needs; and on the other, to the overwhelming reality of God.

A Suggestion.

My suggestion to you is that you must put your solution between the same two terms as the parson's, a sensitivity to the other's need and an overwhelming sense of God. Jesus joined these two things together by making a broken loaf the symbol of the reality of God's giving and the deep need of men and women.

I can give you one small illustration of that, I mean of what I believe to be the line of progress for the future. In England the conviction of the reality of God on the one hand and the needs of man on the other has created the "Public Utility Trust," in which parsons and business men work together with the help of Christian men and women who are prepared to lend their money at two, three or four per cent.

One housing scheme for example received a loan for many years of £10,000 at 2½ per cent. interest. You will see that this use of money is of much more value than a donation or subscription, representing the difference in the interest as earned and the normal business rate. I suggest to you that the Public Utility Society is in the right line of progress. It shows its conviction both of the reality of God and of man's needs.

Businesslike Charity.

The Bishop then went into some detail in describing the Newcastle Housing Improvement Trust, with which he was associated. The

DE VALERA AGAIN PRESIDENT.

OPPOSED BY COSGRAVE AND CENTRISTS

Dublin, Feb. 9.

Mr. Eamon de Valera was elected President of the Irish Republic by 82 votes to 54 when the Dail Eirann opened yesterday. Women predominated in the crowded public galleries, which cheered the remark of Mr. Sean Moylan, the Cork Deputy, that he hoped that next time he should propose Mr. de Valera as President of a 32 county Irish Republic.

Opposing Mr. de Valera's re-election, Mr. Cosgrave said the antecedents of the Flanna Fail gave little hope of any advance of national status.

Mr. MacDermott, on behalf of the Centre Party, also opposed Mr. de Valera's re-election.—Reuter's Special.

Trust is housing the poorest citizens of Newcastle, with no charge at all to rates or Government, by paying a rate of interest below the prevailing commercial rate.

Continuing, his Lordship said: "Charity in the ordinary sense is of little use to those less fortunate than ourselves. They can be helped best by being helped to help themselves. The cause of poverty is not lack of money but lack of independence."

In conversation afterwards, the speaker said the greatest difficulty in England had been to interest men in the utility work. Their query always was, "Business we know and Charity we know—but what is this?" The answer is "Businesslike charity."

SYNTHETIC OIL FROM COAL
BRITISH RESEARCH TRIUMPH
ADMIRALTY'S ORDER

(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1921. Received, February 10, 1933, a.m.)

London, Feb. 10.
AN ORDER FOR ONE YEAR'S SUPPLY OF OIL MADE FROM BRITISH COAL, WHICH IS THE FIRST OF ITS KIND IN NAVAL HISTORY, HAS BEEN PLACED BY THE ADMIRALTY.

The announcement has caused a sensation in business circles, particularly in the coal districts, as it indicates that conversion has been made a commercial proposition and offers a new era of prosperity in the coalfields. The order has been placed by the Admiralty with a well-known British firm which for the past two years has been engaged in secret research work, after extensive trials of the new fuel in H.M.S. Westminster, one of the modern destroyers.

A BY-PRODUCT!
The oil, which is manufactured commercially as a by-product in the production of smokeless fuel, is to be supplied to the Admiralty, at a price which compares favourably with that of first-class bunker petroleum oil, and furthermore, calculations show that the cruising radius of a war vessel is increased by the new oil as compared with ordinary petroleum.—Reuter.

AUSTRALIA SCORING

GREAT FIRST WICKET PARTNERSHIP

CENTURY UP

153 FOR 1 WICKET AT TEA INTERVAL

Brisbane, Feb. 10.
Australia's opening pair put up a capital display when the Fourth Test opened at Brisbane to-day, and half an hour after lunch had put together 96 runs without being separated.

Woodfull played a very patient innings and took no chances whatsoever, but Richardson, more daring, was given two "lives." Woodfull won the toss and elected to bat, play opening punctually before a crowd of 20,000 people. The weather was blazingly hot and the wicket was in perfect condition.

LEG THEORY.

Larwood and Allen were the opening bowlers, Larwood bowling with the breeze. Neither batsman could do much with the bowling except defend and then the breeze veered and the bowlers changed ends. At the other end, Larwood resorted to the leg theory. There was a mild demonstration, which grew in volume when a bumper flew over Woodfull's head. Jardine put on Hammond and Richardson was soon seen to be very uncomfortable against him. He might have been dismissed with his score at ten, when Jardine missed him in the gully and he gave a chance of stumping to Ames when he had scored eleven.

STEADY GOING.

Altogether, neither batsman appeared to be in great difficulty although Jardine rang the changes on his bowlers with fair frequency and runs came very slowly. Woodfull was content to allow his partner to do the bulk of the scoring, though he brightened up a trifle just before lunch. Richardson sent the first fifty up when he sent Mitchell flashing to the on-boundary. The game had been in progress for 75 minutes.

MAGNIFICENT FIELDING.

Another factor in the slowness of the scoring was the magnificent ground fielding of the England team despite the intense heat. They were giving nothing away. At lunch, Richardson had made 34 and Woodfull 21.

The period immediately after lunch, usually regarded as dangerous, was treated by Richardson as an occasion for hitting up and the brightest cricket of the day was seen in the first half hour, Richardson adding 25 to his own score bringing it to 59, while Woodfull added fifteen.

With 96 runs on the board for 0 wicket, Ames had conceded only one extra. Richardson was dismissed after making eighty-three runs, being deceived by a break-ball from Hammond to be smartly stumped. He gave a sparkling display after a quiet opening, driving, hooking and pulling beautifully. He batted for 139 minutes and hit six fours.

Woodfull was very stolid. It took him 175 minutes to reach his fifty, although this included six fours. Larwood was employing the leg theory having six men in a semi-circle, but it appeared to be mastered. Verity was bowling round the wicket. Bradman was kept quiet. Ten scores:

Plymouth, Feb. 10.
When the P. and O. liner, Strathaird, arrived here this morning from the East it was flying the yellow flag indicating the possibility of a case of contagious disease on board.

A medical officer went aboard discovered that a case of smallpox was diagnosed on the liner a few days after the vessel had left Bombay. An unusual feature of the case was that the patient, who was landed at Suez, was at first treated by Christian Science methods by his companion, and three days had elapsed before the ship's surgeon was consulted and the complaint was revealed as smallpox.

Subsequently, nearly all the crew and passengers were vaccinated and up to the arrival of the vessel in Plymouth, no further cases had occurred.—Reuter.

NAVAL AUTHORITIES CARRY OUT THREAT

Batavia, Feb. 10.
The Dutch battleship De Zeven Provinciën is on fire off the coast of Sumatra, having been bombed by a naval flying-boat.

The mutineers are reported to be putting off from the burning ship in boats. Scanty details only have thus far come through regarding the dramatic episode, but it is known that the mutineers, who overpowered their officers when lying in harbour at Oeleh, and put out to sea, have surrendered.

LAST WARNING.

They were given a further opportunity, when the naval flying-boat was soaring overhead, to surrender immediately and unconditionally, but they did not apparently believe that the threat of force would be carried out and maintained their stand of willingness to surrender if their liberty was guaranteed. The flyingboat then commenced to bomb the ironclad and within a short time fire had broken out on the De Zeven Provinciën. The extent of the casualties aboard cannot at present be ascertained. It is only known definitely that the crew are leaving in boats.—Reuter.

LEAGUE'S QUESTION RESENTED

JAPAN INSISTS ON MAINTENANCE OF MANCHUKUO

PEACE HOPE DISPELLED

SHANGHAI, FEB. 10.

GENEVA DEVELOPMENTS HAVE SERVED MERELY TO CAUSE RESENTMENT IN JAPAN AND HOPES OF A SETTLEMENT ARE PRACTICALLY NEGLIGIBLE.

Replying to the Committee of Nineteen's request for more precise and unequivocal information of Japan's position towards the seventh principle in the Ninth Chapter of the Lytton Report, the Japanese Government is expected to instruct Mr. Matsuo to emphasise that Japan considers the continuance of Manchukuo is the only guarantee of peace in the Far East.

As Japan has taken special pains to clarify and explain its stand on this point, official circles in Tokyo appear resentful and feel that the League has slighted Japan by putting such a question!

A possible outcome of the Committee's request now appears to be a precipitation of the Jehol invasion. Official communiques issued by Peking military headquarters state that on the Japanese side of the Shan-haikwan front, there is considerable tension. Yesterday all the city gates were closed and pedestrians were searched.

An additional four hundred men together with seven field guns were drafted into Shan-haikwan yesterday from Suichung, while two Japanese steamers arrived off the city and unloaded munitions and provisions for the Japanese garrison.—Reuter.

THE 'YES' OR 'NO' DEMAND

CHINESE BETTER PLEASED

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1921. Received, February 10, 1933, a.m.)

Shanghai, Feb. 10.
Chinese circles are to-day better pleased with the developments at Geneva and the excitement aroused by the possibility envisaged of the Committee of Nineteen compromising with Japan has died down.

Gratification is expressed that the League appears, at last, to be getting into actual grips with the Sino-Japanese situation, by asking Japan for a clear-cut "Yes" or "No" to the premise that the existing regime in Manchuria does not constitute a solution of the problem.

Unless Japan now makes further proposals in the direction of a compromise, the dispute will be carried from Paragraph Three, Article Fifteen, of the Covenant, which provides for conciliation, to Paragraph Four, under which the League will have to make a statement on the facts of the dispute and recommendations deemed just and proper thereto.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN BRUNSWICK CONCERT HALL

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1921. Received, February 10, 1933, a.m.)

Berlin, Feb. 10.
Serious political clashes occurred in several parts of Germany to-day, the combatants usually being Nazis and Communists. The most serious disorder occurred in Brunswick, where the Socialists were holding a meeting in the Concert Hall when the building was invaded by about two hundred Nazi storm-troops. A fierce fracas was soon in progress. Police were rushed to the hall and were ordered to enter to break up the meeting. The arrival of the police added to the confusion and in the course of the fighting seven persons were seriously wounded. Revolvers, chairs and glasses were used as weapons by the Socialist crowd.—Reuter.

NEW LINDBERGH SENSATION

THREAT TO KIDNAP SECOND BABY

TWO ARRESTS

TRAP LAID BY THE POLICE

New York, Feb. 9.
Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh have become the centre of another first-class sensation, threats having been made to kidnap their second baby son.

On this occasion, however, a trap was set into which the alleged criminals fell.

Two men were arrested at Roanoke, Virginia, to-day in connexion with the affair. They are to be charged with attempting to extort $350,000 from Colonel Lindbergh by a threat to kidnap his six-months' old son.

HOUSE GUARDED.

Following the demand, Col. Lindbergh communicated with the police. Special guards were stationed round Lindbergh's house to prevent a kidnapping attempt, while the pretence was kept up that Col. Lindbergh intended to meet the demand. The police placed a cheque for $17,000 in the hollow stump of a tree in the neighbourhood, as Col. Lindbergh had been told to do.

CHEQUE CASHED.
Several days ago a man cashed the cheque. This morning he was trailed and arrested when he was joined by a man who is alleged to be his confederate. Both suspects deny that they had anything to do with the kidnapping threat. It is stated by Colonel Schwarzkopf, the chief of the New Jersey State Police, that the Roanoke affair has nothing to do with the murder of Lindbergh's first baby.—Reuter.

KNOWLEDGE OF WALTZ STEP IS ALWAYS ESSENTIAL TO GOOD DANCING

BY ARTHUR MURRAY

(This is the first of a series of articles on the newest dance steps, by Arthur Murray, famous instructor in ball-room dancing. The series will cover every phase of the modern dance—position, poise, basic steps and the intricacies of such glamorous dances as the Tango, the Rumba and the Lindy Hop.)

Don't let the new 1933 dancing give you an inferiority complex. If you know the five basic steps so that you can dance them alone, perfectly, you can pick up the new dances readily.

The five basic steps are the Waltz, the Chasse, the Pivot, the Balance and the Walking Steps. Learn them, one at a time, and dance them alone until you are step-perfect. Practice before a mirror, holding your arms bent at the elbow and raised almost level with your shoulders to give you lightness through the waist.

First, let us start with the Box Step, which is really two Waltz steps, one forward, and one backward.

Master this Box Step so that when you start doing turns, you can do the steps mechanically. Here are the directions, illustrated by the diagram given to-day:

Arthur Murray is shown above demonstrating the graceful waltz step which is one of the basic steps towards proper dancing. The waltz may be learned by following the square turn diagram.

1. Step directly forward with the LEFT foot.
2. Right foot to right hand corner of box, as per diagram figure No. 2.
3. Close left foot up to right, with your weight on the left. This completes one Waltz Step.
4. Step straight back, with right foot.

5. Left foot to the lower left hand corner.
  6. Close right foot up to the left foot, weight on right.
- Repeat the above movements of six counts until you can do it easily and rapidly. Then turn on the radio and practise it again and again, to waltz music.

NEXT: The Chasse.

HOME-MADE SWEETS.

Cocoanut Ice.

Cocoanut ice is a delicious sweet, and costs very little. To two pounds of loaf sugar add half a pint of water, and boil in a saucepan until a little, dropped in cold water, forms a soft ball. Remove from the fire, and stir with a wooden spoon until the syrup threads.

Now add gradually six ounces of desiccated cocoanut, and stir until the mixture is fairly thick. Butter two tins, and pour half into one with a little lemon or vanilla essence. Pour the rest into the other tin with a few drops of cochineal added. Then work up the mixture into little cubes or balls of yellow, white, and pink respectively.

Marzipan

Marzipan is another very popular sweet. Take 1/2 pound of icing sugar, 1/2 pound of ground almonds, and one egg. Sieve the icing sugar, mix with the almond meal, and then add the egg. Kneading well with the hands until it is a firm lump. Then work into various fruits and fancies.

Strawberries can be made by rolling the correctly shaped piece of marzipan into a mixture of coarse sugar and strawberry coloured cochineal. Press each strawberry heavily into the mixture, so that the coarse crystals give the proper pitted effect. Cherries are made by rolling the marzipan into little balls, and painting them with a little cochineal dissolved in water. Stalks can be made of a thin strip of angelica.

Peppermint Creams and Fondants

Coloured cream fondants and peppermint creams always delight children. All that is required for making the fondant, the foundation of these sweets, is the white of an egg, a pound of sifted icing sugar, and a tablespoonful of water.

Pour the white of an egg into a soup plate, and add the water and icing sugar, stirring briskly until soft and pliable. Then knead well, and divide into three parts. Flavour one with vanilla, and colour with a few drops of cochineal. Flavour the second with vanilla, but do not colour it, and add peppermint-essence to the third. Roll each piece into a long roll, cut into even slices, and leave for a few hours to harden.

Then with a rolling-pin press each slice out gently on to a piece of sugar-dusted paper, and cut out into all kinds of shapes—diamonds, squares, rounds, &c. A box of most fascinating Noah's Ark animals for young children can be made by cutting out, with a fine steel skewer, lions, pigs, ducks, &c., and adding eyes and noses with a quill pen dipped in cochineal.

Fudge

Fudge can be made by melting three tablespoonfuls of butter in a double boiler, adding three cupfuls of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate, and a cupful of milk. Mix well, and boil, then put to set on to a buttered tin. Chopped walnuts can be added if liked.

Turkish Delight

Turkish delight is a delicious sweet if made this way. Soak one ounce of gelatine for two hours in half a tencupful of cold water. Then boil two large cupfuls of castor sugar with a small cupful of boiling water and a tencupful of tartaric acid for five minutes. Add the juice of a lemon, a few drops of pink colouring, and pour over the gelatine. Stir well, and pour on to a buttered tin.

Crystallised Fruits

A box of crystallised fruits is a nice change. Put a pound of sugar, three gills of water, and a pinch of cream of tartar, in a saucepan, melt slowly, and boil for five minutes. Stone the dates, grapes, orange quarters, &c.; stick each one on to a thin strip of wood, and dip into the boiling mixture. Lay on a sieve to dry.

to the rules, has to be completed by the end of March which means that 82 games have to be rushed through next month. Since Christmas there have been many days when there were no fixtures at all and according to the fixture list there are nine clear days in this month. If they are to complete the event the committee will have to "get a move on."

THE clash between St. Andrew's ladies and the Hongkong ladies in the Coer Clark Cup should provide a return and will be played at Soekun-poo, bull-off at 3.15 p.m. When the teams met on the previous occasion the Hongkong ladies won by the only goal scored, but on Saturday St. Andrew's are making a strong bid to lower champions' colours. Unfortunately St. Andrew's will be without the services of Mrs. Rose, who is on home leave, and her place will be taken by J. Bryson. The team is the same as represented the Saints in the first game, except for the inclusion of N. Leo in the forward line in place of G. White, who will replace I. Rogers at back, and E. Landolt, who will play at right back to the exclusion of P. Woolley.

THE Hongkong Ladies have a very formidable team on paper and on the field great things may be expected of them. M. Bird will be between the sticks and usual and the backs will be E.M. Gray and A. Nicol, the latter taking the place of J. Smalley. R.M. Pope is included at centre-half in place of D. Robertson and the forward line remains the same, namely, I. Knill, M. Allen Jones, P.M. Harrop, J. Churchill and E. Blackburn. The strongest part of the Hongkong team is their defence.

PLAYING at King's Park in the Mamak tournament yesterday, H.M.S. Wishart defeated the Veteran by four goals to one.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

month. The tournament, according to and captured the next three games for match without difficulty.

GAME OF CONTRADICTIONS.

Tsui's game yesterday was a game of contradictions and irritating idiosyncrasies. He started off in typical style, introducing in rapid succession forehand and backhand drives, followed by crisp volleys which gave him game after game.

And then, for some reason, best known to himself, he dropped this for a display of "show," which reacted upon himself with almost poetic justice. Undercut services, drop shots made from the height of his head (this is a useless stroke) and a whole paraphernalia of mystical slice and reverse spin shots from centre court, were brought to displace his flowing drives and flat racket service.

The trouble with these, so far as he was concerned, was that they were made in such an obvious manner that Capt. Cannon fed on them. Thus he found it simple to anticipate Tsui's undercut service and ran to kill it every time.

When Tsui did attempt to return to his normal game, he found it a difficult task, and very nearly paid a dear price for his work.

SHORT LIVED

Ng Sze Kwong's life in the championship was cut very short by Lai Kwong-tung, the ex-Malayan player, who, driving superbly and beating the old Hongkong favourite in very moves of the game, walked away with the match in straight sets, conceding but one game.

Ng never approached his old form, and when he wasn't beaten outright, pined on points for his opponent by noting the most simple returns. He must have been very disappointed, but there was no gainsaying the better player on the days form.

CLAIM FOR WAGES

ADVERTISING SALESMAN
AND VERBAL CONTRACT

Harry Arthur Love, an advertising salesman, of 44, Hankow Road, successfully claimed for wages and commission due to him from the United Publicity and Advertising Company, Ltd., of Asiatic Building, at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon, before the Pains Judge (Mr. Justice Wood).

Plaintiff claimed from the defendants the sum of $516.10, being as to $105 earned by plaintiff from September 15 to October 5, 1932, at $150 a month under verbal contract introduced by him either to the defendants or to their predecessors in business; $150, one month's wages in lieu of notice, the plaintiff having wrongfully been dismissed on October 5; and $261.60 further damages for her 6; and $261.60 further damages for the estimated amount of commission which the plaintiff would have earned had he received from the defendants one month's notice to which he was entitled.

Mr. G. S. Ford (Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist) appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. F. H. Sin (Messrs. A. E. Hall) for the defendants.

Terms of Contract.

In evidence, plaintiff stated that he was engaged by the United Publicity and Advertising Co. about September 13 last by a Mr. Helliwig, then manager. The terms of the contract, which was verbal, were that his salary was to be $150 a month and commission at 10 per cent. on contracts secured. He was dismissed on October 5 by a Mr. Cheng, then manager. On that date he asked for his salary for September but it was refused him. Mr. Cheng stating that he was under a misapprehension as to the terms agreed. A different outline of salary and commission had been worked out and he was to work under that outline. Witness refused to work under the new terms. During his period of employment he had brought in contracts worth $171 and $1,140 respectively.

Answering Mr. Sin, witness agreed there was no written contract. He was taken on at three months probation to be terminated by one month's notice on either side.

Mr. A. D. Hannan, senior manager of Messrs. Wallace Harper, gave evidence of introducing plaintiff to Mr. Helliwig and the terms agreed to. Advertising Contracts Cancelled.

Cheng Shi-man, employee of the defendant firm, stated he was formerly employed as acting manager of the United Publicity and Advertising Company, and when the business was transferred to the United Publicity and Advertising Co. Ltd., he was employed by the new company. He was not present when the contract was made with plaintiff, but the terms were told him by Mr. Helliwig. In October when plaintiff demanded his salary and commission he refused to pay him, stating that it was the rule of the company that no commission would be paid until the money was received for the contracts. The two advertising contracts had been cancelled. Mr. Wallace Harper stated that the advertising contracts were entered into by him, and when the business was transferred he notified the firms of his intention of cancelling the contracts. Plaintiff told him when he secured the contracts that he was on trial.

Mr. Sin contended that there was no contract of service between plaintiff and the defendants, but his Lordship stated the plaintiff's evidence had not been contradicted. "I think that by your own act you deprived the plaintiff of this commission, so it does not matter when the commission was payable," he added.

His Lordship gave judgment for

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

American's leading radio stars make their bow to the movie public in company with a cast of screen favourites in "The Big Broadcast", romantic comedy set against the background of a radio studio, which comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday. Bing Crosby, air ace with Stuart Erwin and Lola Hyams, screen players, head the cast of the production. Kate Smith, the Bonwell Sister, the Mills Brothers, Cab Calloway and his Orchestra, Vincent Lopez and his Orchestra, Burns and Allen, and Arthur Tracy (The Street Singer) head the radio cast. The picture does not depend for its effectiveness on the mere presence of names, however. A definite plot holds it together. It has to do with Crosby's affair with Sharon Lynne, which he takes so seriously that he never gets to the studio in time to broadcast. He loses his job, much to the dismay not only of himself, but of Miss Hyams, who is rather too fond of him. But his dismay is even greater when Miss Lynne marries a broker, leaving him flat! At this point he meets Erwin, who is also a radio star, and Miss Hyams has abandoned him, second because a "dame from Dallas" has taken him for $100,000. But when he finds that Miss Hyams is infatuated with Crosby, he spends his remaining $300.00 buying the station and a network to restore Bing to his job and make him happy. This leads to further amusing consequences which are straightened by means of a big broadcast in which all the stars participate.

"Air Mail"
"The mail goes through! And the courage, skill, and intrepid flying it takes to make this motto of the air mail fleet good provides the thrilling theme of Universal's great aviation classic, "Air Mail," which opens an engagement at the Central Theatre to-morrow, treating the audience to some of the most spectacular flying scenes ever witnessed on the national screen. There have been aviation pictures before, but none that have presented the story of the unsung heroes of the government mail as "Air Mail" does. One of the most essentially dramatic phases of flying, the air mail provides a substantial, gripping and romantic theme around which has been woven a very human story of devotion to duty and sacrifice with characters that live on the screen. Action, thrills, sustained suspense, believable romance and story interest combine to make "Air Mail" a departure from the ordinary run of movie fare. It is something to see. "The Woman in Room 13"

Film fans who have been clamouring for more Elissa Landi screen stories will find their answer at the King's Theatre where "The Woman in Room 13," her latest Fox emotional drama, is now playing. In this stirring portrayal of a pretty young divorcee's fight to make her break from a revengeful ex-husband a clean one, Miss Landi is revealed as an actress of manifold charms and appeal. The diversity of moods she is called upon to portray enable her for the first time to enact to normal emotion of a present-day American wife in a believable and logical story. She is seen as an unhappy wife misnamed to a philandering husband; she is pictured as a spirited, capable, independent woman who had made a success as a composer; she is depicted with a devoted new mate; then, when her new happiness is threatened, she fights with every ounce of her energy to protect the man she loves, accepting blame, censure and shame in order to do so. Miss Landi is surrounded by a notable cast of screen celebrities, including in the more prominent roles Ralph Bellamy, Neil Hamilton, Myrna Loy and Gilbert Roland. The photoplay was directed by Henry King; from a Guy Bolton adaptation of the powerful stage success written by Samuel Shipman, Max Marcin and Percival Wilde.

The plaintiff for $105 wages from September 15 to October 5; $131.10 commission due under the two contracts; $150 as one month's salary in lieu of notice; and $1 as nominal damages in respect of the estimated amount of commission plaintiff would have earned but for his wrongful dismissal, a total of $387.10. On the application of Mr. Sin, it was agreed to set off the sum of $84, costs due from plaintiff to the defendants in a previous action when plaintiff was non-suited.

"WEEK-END MURDER"
BY GABRIEL F FORBUSH

CHAPTER XLVI

Linda heard the words as in a daze. "From our end of the hall—the nursery—" Statlander had said. It seemed as if he had shouted those words through the shattered quiet of the house.

She summed every ounce of courage she possessed and turned a smile of forced brilliance upon the somewhat astonished Mr. Statlander.

"Oh—yes—perhaps—I don't know," she gasped; then, as her blood seemed to circulate more normally and the room ceased its hysterical circling around her, she went on more coherently. "I'm sure no one actually slept in the nursery," she said politely. (As if it mattered—as if anything mattered but getting Tom back of getting to him and telling him!) "Anyone might have been asleep—less and restless and wandered in there, as you say, in search of a breath of air. Oh, Rosie—dinner is served? Mr. Statlander—would you—perhaps you'll wait here—I'll run over to the garage and tell Tom."

"Not at all." He rose with stiff courtesy. "I will do that, Mrs. Averill. A pleasure I assure you. Good evening, Mr. Pratt." And as Linda wildly tried to think of some excuse which should not be too futile to hold him, Marvin inopportunely appeared and her opportunity vanished.

Fortunately Marvin was unobtrusive. And, perhaps even more fortunate, he was feeling extremely well pleased with himself because of the outcome of the afternoon's game. Her part was purely a listening one.

"That was gorgeous, Marvin! Oh, I wish I could have seen it! Why didn't you tell me you were—" The mechanical phrases came to her urgent need. And from the corner of her eye she saw three figures leave the garage door and come across the lawn—Shaughnessy, Statlander, Tom.

She felt she was chattering a little hysterically. Tom, always sensitive to her mood, looked suddenly at her, then at Marvin and then grew very grave indeed.

"Oh, no, Tom—no!" She dared not breathe the word aloud though she too, receptive to his thought, knew instantly he had guessed the reason for her agitation, but misread its exciting cause. Before she could signal him to drop back a moment, her husband had executed a quick manoeuvre. It took him, with apparent interest and pleasure, beside the still happily unconscious Marvin, and, hand on arm, Tom marched into the dining room with the man he now considered he must watch every second, while Linda, thwarted, was left to follow with the other two.

What a stupid, dangerous mistake—but there was nothing she could do about it! In a way it was her fault and in a way it wasn't. Anyhow, she couldn't help it. She couldn't shout across the table, "Tom, you're mistaken! It isn't Marvin—it's DeVos!"

The meal was a nightmare. How she managed to keep from screaming aloud, from flying into violent hysterics as it proceeded on its chatty, informal course she never understood. Fortunately a ghost of their first evening arose to keep conversation animated and to absolve her of much responsibility. Some blithe, offhand statement of Shaughnessy's aroused Mr. Statlander's controversial craving for accuracy. A spirited argument ensued, into which both Tom and Marvin eventually were drawn. Its vehemence, however, lacked the acrimony of that dreadful dinner party three nights before, when poor Cousin Amos served as tinder to the ready anger of all the others. No, not quite all—certainly so far as the furious discussion was concerned. Her mind flashed back and she saw again the still, contemptuous look of the man on her right, heard the cool venom of his tone. "We did those things better—the Congo—"

The words rang through her brain, and this time her control quivered dangerously. If she should scream Tom wouldn't understand. There'd be trouble—and it might warn him! She laughed tremulously, eliciting a look of startled inquiry from Mr. Statlander who seemed to have been reading her a homily on the weakness of modern house construction.

Then on the steps came a light quick tread. She felt she would have known its owner anywhere, for all she had heard it so little. Something poised, something cat-like about it—the step of a tall, graceful, agile man, in perfect control of every muscle and nerve of his highly trained, beautiful body.

Then she saw her husband turning from Marvin with an air of suspended interest, look up and start some commonplace remark behind her, in the doorway, she could feel the graceful, indolent figure of the Belgian, ready now to leave. Half-rising, he fumbled his napkin, dropped it to the floor and stooped to pick it up. Incredibly nobody but herself seemed to feel the air of suspense—the horrible hovering of terror. Tom stood up, a little pale, she thought, rather than flushed by stooping, but quite himself. In fact, the smile he flashed at the newcomer was almost more warm and welcoming than an ordinary greeting.

"Be right with you, DeVos," he said and through his voice ran the same vibrant tone. Suddenly she heard the beat of drums the martial music that sends men forth to battle. "You're ready? Good! Linda, excuse me a moment."

Then at last his eyes were toward her, and from her own flashed all the agonized warning she could put into a look. "He's the one!" her eyes said. Unbelievably, miraculously, in Tom's eyes she saw the same words, "He's the one!"

Then, an imperceptible second of warning over, Tom walked out the door with that lithe, lilting swing of his shoulders that again started the ring of battle music in her brain. Fighting the impulse to spring up and walk beside him—it would hurt more than it would help—she heard his voice, steady, friendly, apologetic.

"Sorry—I'll have to keep you race, ma'am?" Linda heard her-waiting just a moment, DeVos. I ran out the sedan but I'm not satisfied with the way the engine misses and I think we'd better take the little roadster. No, don't bother—the road's dusty and the grass is damp. I'll run her back here in a jiffy. Just wait at the door."

But it was more than a jiffy before Linda, every nerve alert, heard the scurry of gravel under arriving wheels. By the time Tom came they were all in the hall, talking, laughing, herself the centre of the little group, rallying the Belgian on his desertion of her, playing up to Marvin's evident exultation in his superior tennis skill, deferring to the curt finality of Mr. Statlander's analysis of the science of the game.

Then Tom appeared—smiling, apologetic. Would he go through with it? What had he been doing in the garage all this time? "All ready, DeVos. Sorry. Hop in!"

The little blue roadster seemed so staunch, so unromantic, so much a part of her daily life. At the wheel, Tom flung her a smile to which she gaily responded—head up, pulse beating. The Belgian stepped in with one single, adroit movement; the door slammed. She stood watching until the little whirl of blue turned the corner of the road and disappeared into the dusk.

In the rather blank pause that followed, Rosie appeared with the tiled coffee table. "On the ter-self assent mechanically. Then the shrill ring of the telephone came and she motioned the others toward the lawn. "Go on out," she said, "I'll be right along."

But when they had gone and she dared pick up the instrument she was trembling so violently that she had to drop down on the bench in the hallway and steady her arm against the wall.

"Yes?" she said. "Yes?"

Yes!—yes, they've started . . .

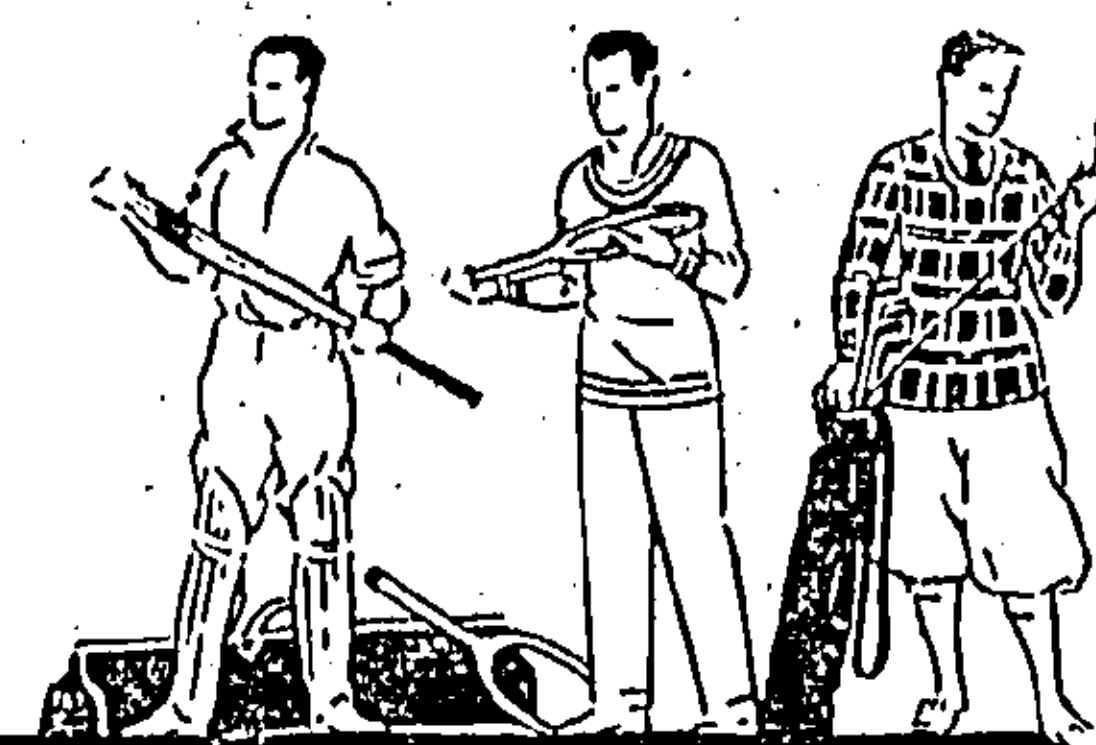

A click in her ear—the connection was broken.

She hung up the receiver and wiped her hands fastidiously with the little chiffon handkerchief which she found matted to a ball in one of them. Then she rose and went out on the terrace.

The little group awaited her around the coffee table by the low chair she liked. They were smoking and chattering, but all started to rise as she came near.

"Don't get up!" Her voice sounded strangely far away to her ears. She felt as if an aeon had passed since dinner had been ended. "I'll pour your coffee in a moment." She sank into the chair and smiled a little unsteadily. "I must tell you what's happened. I think—it's all right now."

She saw their looks, of polite, mystified interest. Only Shaughnessy sat alert and anxious. "That was—police headquarters that rang up. When Tom went to the garage he telephoned them from there. They called back to (Continued on Page 11.)

"GRAND HOTEL" MERITS ITS INTENSIVE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

HAND SELECTED CAST IN GOLD MEDAL FILM

By "Celluloid"

FORTISSIMO praise and panegyrics have spelled more box-office disasters than bad artistry, and the history of theatrical and cinematic production is strewn with the wrecks of good material that the public failed to support. It is the old story of anticipation and realization.

All of which concerns Grand Hotel, the M.G.M. much-boasted version of Vicki Baum's best-seller. Crowds queued up to book for the opening shows at the Queen's yesterday, and should continue their frantic rush to break long-distance run records here, for despite the ink that has been spilled on its publicity and the major keys in which its praises have been sung, the realization of Grand Hotel is worth the eager anticipation.

Of all the intensive Hollywood publicity campaigns, the fanfare that heralded Grand Hotel has probably sounded the farthest. Publicity writers began on it from the first moment it was suggested and each glittering star added to its cast provided additional fuel for their panegyric pens. Every incident in its making was seized on for propaganda. Critics took up the tale when it appeared and fresh superlatives almost had to be employed when the Hollywood Academy gave it the gold medal for the best production of 1932.

Never has a film had a higher value placed on it, and failure to come up to expectations might have been its fate. But Grand Hotel justifies the solid slabs of superlatives that have been heaped on it.

If for no other reason, the film earns its praises in its semblance to the original. Hollywood has been guilty of some terrible abortions in the past, and notwithstanding the difficulty in cramming the massive tome of Vicki Baum's novel into an hour and a half of celluloid, the makers have sent out as faithful a copy as possible. Readers of the book will enjoy the film. They will not care at any of the carefully selected cast.

Grand Hotel is definitely an "all-star" film: of the sextette of stars that ran production costs to seven figures, not one can be accused of dominating the sequences. The

JOHN BARRYMORE, and his famous profile, which he exploits fully in "Grand Hotel" at the Queen's.

If a selection of the best historical display were demanded, it would probably go to Wallace Beery or Lionel Barrymore. Beery as the industrial magnate is different to the rough-neck of Men and Boys and The Champ, while Lionel Barrymore, as the extraneous in gesture as usual, and brother John exactly the same impudent rascal as Arsene Lupin.

Continuity is where Grand Hotel scores as a story: scenario writers have linked its many scenes together into a smooth running plot and director Edmund Goulding has carried it out with correct attention to tempo.

MICROPHONE MAGNETS.

THE biggest names in the American radio world have been gathered together to make The Big Broadcast something new in musical films. What headlines Paramount have collected! The great Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, Burns and Allen, Cal Calhoun, the Boswell Sisters, the Mills Brothers and the Vincent Lopez orchestra. Most of them are strangers here but their names are on thousands of gramophone records and their radio audiences must number millions.

A delightful original musical spectacle, The Big Broadcast is a lesson in showmanship by the Hollywood pastmasters. The most popular personalities in broad-casting have been brought together in one glittering compact entertainment.

But it is not all harmony and hubbub. The story which welds the artists together is highly ingenious and contains the correct amalgamation of humour and sentiment. Apart from the radio singers, Stuart Erwin is the star. Of the performers, Bing Crosby's admirers will be well satisfied. The Big Broadcast is the Sunday attraction at the King's.

LOOPS AND LOOPS.

THE "Last Post" of the war film seems to have sounded the "Reveille of the air stunting production. Air Mail, due at the Central to-morrow sings the praise of the heroes of the U. S. Government mail in an airport, allegedly miles from anywhere. There is a crowd of rough human pilots, flying the usual race with death, spectacular aerial shots that almost reach the standard of Hell's Angels and Hell Divers, and, of course, respective love affairs.

Ralph Bellamy is the head hero, supported by Pat O'Brien, Russell Hopton, Slim Sumner, Gloria Stuart and Lillian Bond.

MURDER WILL OUT.

THE makers of The Woman in Room 13, now at the King's, were evidently in a quandary whether to make it a mystery or, as seems to be the prevailing vogue, tell the audience all in the first scene. They decided on the latter: Whether they chose wisely is doubtful.

With the mystery gone, the story depends on the acting of the principals, and while they all make their exits and entrance in accordance with the best Hollywood tradition, there seems a lack of sustaining interest.

Happily, Elissa Landi has seldom had a better part. As usual she is the mystery woman, the same as other films, but has a better chance to show her undoubted artistry.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done: 1,080,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Union Pacific declared a $1 dividend which is the same rate declared for the three preceding quarters. This declaration strengthened the entire market causing shorts to cover vigorously in some recently weak issues. Later the market declined moderately due to a dip in wheat caused by reports of continued cold over the winter belt.

Brokers' loans were reported at $420,000,000 a decrease of $30,000,000 from last week's figure of $450,000,000.

Time money was quoted at 1/2% for 90 and 90 days.

A GREAT FLIGHT.

A truly remarkable accomplishment is that of Squadron Leader Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Nicholls in having covered a distance of six thousand miles without a stop in a little over fifty-seven hours. The feat is a tribute alike to the intrepidity of the aviators and the qualities of British engines and equipment. Although the fliers did not actually reach their goal, they added a third record to British aerial achievements, thus illustrating our supremacy in the air. When we recall the fact that it was only a matter of twenty-five years ago that Bleriot aroused world interest by committing his fate to the reliability of his aeroplane engine for some half an hour while he crossed the English Channel, it will be realised what a tremendous advance has been made in the science of aviation. The Great War, of course, undoubtedly accelerated aviation progress, and since that time there have been many illustrations of man's gradual but steady conquest of the air. The Post-Caddy world flight stands out in particular as one of these, the route being covered in some eight days with several stops. On the basis of the latest British feat, it is probable that the same route could be covered by the giant Fairley-Napier machine in three stages. How time and distance are being eliminated is well shown by the new record now set up, a feature of which was that the aviators were in constant communication with their headquarters during their epoch-making flight. When Drake set out on his nautical circling of the globe, it was nearly three years before he got back. During all that time, practically nothing was heard of him. He sailed unknown seas, trusting to the theory, which many doubted, that the earth was round. For the aerial navigator nowadays, however, there is not a mile concerning which information is not available, and even on the longest flights the aviators can keep in touch with the outside world. There is a great and wonderful destiny for aviation, of which the record flight of Squadron Leader Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Nicholls is a pointer. And there is something very inspiring in the fact that in this, as in so many other spheres of endeavour, Britain is by no means behind the times.

New Men Behind the Scenes.

After thirteen trying years Sir Eric Drummond, the Secretary-General of the League of Nations is definitely retiring at the end of June. His place is to be taken by Monsieur Joseph Avenol, a Frenchman, who, as Deputy Secretary-General, has been his second-in-command since 1923. The old traditions should therefore continue. Several other changes in personnel have already taken place. Owing to the expiration of their contracts the Italian and German Under-Secretaries departed from Geneva at the end of last year. The new German Under-Secretary-General is Dr. Trendelenburg. He has been associated with the economic and financial work of the League for many years and knows the workings of the Secretariat well. As his first task he will take over the supervision and control of the organisation of the forthcoming World Economic Conference. There is no doubt that this side of the League during the next few years is due to become as important as the Disarmament Section, for all the League's efforts are now being expended to bring about economic as well as material disarmament. The new Italian is M. Pilotti, another man who for several years has had dealings with the League as an Italian delegate. He will carry on with the work that used to be done by the German Under-Secretary-General, Herr Dufour-Feronce, namely social work (drugs, white slave traffic and the rest) and Intellectual Co-operation or Education. M. Pilotti was the first of the newly appointed higher members of the Secretariat to take the solemn oath of allegiance to the League in public before the members of the Council. In order that an Englishman may be in one of the higher posts of the League, Captain Walters who has acted as Sir Eric's right hand man for several years, is to be promoted to the rank of Under-Secretary-General and will look after internal administration. The post of Deputy Secretary-General rendered vacant by the advancement of M. Avenol is most probably to be filled by Mr. Phelan, an Irishman who was head of the Diplomatic Department of the International Labour Office for the last twelve years. It will be a very good appointment, if it is made, since Phelan was in the British Ministry of Labour during the War and is in touch with political circles in many other countries. Lastly there is some talk that Mr. Hambro, of Norway, who has been one of the keenest critics of the League at the last four Assemblies, will be made an Under-Secretary-General so as to keep the point of view of the smaller countries well to the fore.

Castles in Distress

Considerable public interest has been aroused in London by proposals to pull down Waterloo Bridge, and to alter the appearance of Carlton House Terrace, the fine block of residential buildings overlooking the famous Mall leading from Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace. This attitude contrasts in its zeal to preserve the architectural beauties of the past, with the indifference that the past itself showed to masterpieces of Gothic architecture. Contrary to popular opinion, there has probably never been an age so consciously devoted as the present to maintaining the scenic and architectural amenities bequeathed to it by its predecessors. But in one respect the difficulties of so preserving the amenities of the past grow continually greater. The increase of taxation and the gradual equalisation of wealth make it less and less possible for private individuals to keep open and in good repair those huge castles and houses of historic interest which are one of the most picturesque features of the English countryside. It is strikingly significant that only a few weeks ago a castle in the Midlands was sold for £7. The cost of maintaining such a place is so considerable that no one felt justified in offering a bigger sum.

THE SOCIAL EVIL: III

POMPAAN ON HIS ROUNDS

This is the third article by the "Telegraph's" special investigator on Hongkong's social evil. Yesterday he dealt with sly prostitution concentrated within slum areas defined, and he now proceeds to discuss the activities therein of the Police Vice Squad.

A cautious estimate has placed the number of those practising sly prostitution at well over 1,000, and most of them are to be found in such slum quarters as were described yesterday, into which the foreigner rarely penetrates without receiving critical attention, much less in his role of the Inspector going the rounds. The work of the Police Vice Squad, and particularly the European Senior Officer who directs its activities, is arduous—so arduous that one hesitates for his well-being to heap on him the increasing responsibilities evolved from the new regime.

When not co-operating with the officer at the Secretariat of Chinese Affairs whose special duties are sometimes necessarily limited to the nominal functions of his Department, he instructs his men in their respective duties and so perfect those details having their culmination in the more or less lightning raids conducted nightly on suspected houses. Lodging houses for women suspected of visiting the vice-clos referred to and massage-halls which are not what they purport to be, have added to his manifold duties lately, but it is the sly brothels which are the most constant source of worry.

Hydra-Headed Monster

The hydra-headed monster of Greek mythology may be fittingly brought into comparison with the problem, which keeps rearing up its head after seeming extinction. A floor, it has proved, may be raided one week, and the tenants dispersed or deported, and in the next, the same business is discovered being carried on at another address. The fine, imposed on the "principal tenant" in such cases has not apparently acted as a deterrent, although it has lately been doubled. With evident facility, she is able to pay the fine, or more correctly speaking, has it paid for her.

And by whom? Responsible Police officers, impressed, speak of a "ring", or a number of "rings", by whom resources are pooled, not only to acquire "replenishments" but also to meet contingencies in one direction indicated by Court fines. That same ring, it is further declared, maintains a regular spy system.

Thus it has come about that through his being hedged in by spies, the "Pompaan on Patrol" moves like a danger-signal. He is signalled and "telegraphed" before he has set his foot far from Headquarters. A procession of Senior Officers succeeding to the unenviable post of Vice Squad Chief is now beginning to understand why, on arrival on the suspected premises, they find it generally shrouded in Stygian darkness, and the woman who holds the rent receipt greeting them with a surprised look and a smirk, disclosing gold-filled teeth.

Except for this "responsible" principal tenant and perhaps one or two dowdy looking menials, the apartment is deserted.

Once in a while the pompaan is successful. For example, last night he conducted an important raid about which he received advance information, in Blank Street, and was fairly successful. In the beginning he marshalled his forces, stationed one subordinate at the bottom of the staircase, and another in the rear to cut off escape in that direction. With two others he ascended the floor—and the surprise, the vital condition for success was complete: he had inmates and clients bottled in.

A panicky customer, temporarily bereft of reason, was with difficulty restrained from suicidally leaping over the verandah balustrade. To-day, after warning off the clientele who looked oddly sheepish in the circumstances, he takes the woman and the case into Court. The Police Magistrate is accustomed to these details and requires only a perfunctory recital from the Prosecuting Police Officer. "Four rooms.... five beds (the odd is situated in the corridor).... five men.... four women."

Defendant in the dock the principal tenant who holds the rent receipt, your Worship. She has a previous conviction.

His Worship: One hundred dollars fine, or two months. Furniture confiscated.

LUCK

By A.P. Garland.

"I believe in the old-fashioned virtues," said Finsen heavily. "Ask yourself who are the men that have made good—"

"I know," said Kinley. "The men who have made good saucapans, drainpipes, sock-suspenders—"

"The men," said Finsen, "that have possessed industry and perseverance, punctuality—"

"And all stations to Marble Arch," broke in Himbury.

Then he continued seriously, "Listen to this. I was with a man to-day who has enough dollars to carpet Hyde Park. Three years ago, in New York, he was reduced to his last crust. Incidentally, he still keeps the crust to remind him of old times. Then a motor-car knocked him into the middle of next week."

"I know the yarn," said Kinley. "A beautiful woman picked him up—"

"A big, black nigger picked him up," thundered Himbury. "When he came out of hospital he found that in the mix-up with the car his uvula had been twisted several degrees away from the true north so that his voice was all husky. A few months later he was a radio crooner at a colossal salary and had to keep a bodyguard of certified assassins to stall off the love-sick women who camped out on his doorstep. Old-fashioned virtues my aunt's elbow!"

"That's nothing," said Finsen. "A chap I know suffered terribly from insomnia. Used to spend seven nights a week counting sheep so that he became the best sheep-counter in two-yes, or twenty-two, hemispheres. As a result he got a splendid job in Australia, where a man with his abilities could be appreciated. There his widespread reputation won him the hand of the daughter of a millionaire squatter—and she was fairly squat herself, and he's now the owner of 1,457,346 sheep—counting from left to right—and can have lamb cutlets eight days out of seven if he wants them."

The Very Idea!

A WOULDN'T SHIP

By Edward Kelly, Master.

"Yo!Ho!" he whimpered. "A small bottle of Formazone on a dead man's chest."

The Empress of Britain, which arrives here to-morrow, is too large to go alongside the Kowloon wharves.

In our day, when salt horse was a luxury, and when eight months out from home we used to have boot salad, and the binnacle was used as a saucery, a little thing about not being able to go alongside wharves would never have troubled us.

We had a rubber bottom in our last ship—the "Baurd", a Norwegian freighter.

Her masts were so tall that a man falling off the top would be picked up on the way back from Buenos Aires, after spending nine days in Welthelvet Cove with ullage thrown in.

Other times, the cry would come from the crow's-nest, "Pratas Shoals ahead." Might be one time we would cut the centre out of the shoals.... next time we'd scrap our keel off. O.K. .... Sail without a keel.

Camo Macao harbour.... chuck the engines overboard and go through with ease.

Speaking as a captain, if we were in charge of the Empress of Britain we would yell out, "We have immovable bows!"

"Yat Yee Sam see!" (Chinese for "Yes, our wharves are also steel!") LET'S GO!

And if we win—we win.

If the wharves win.... Harry Carey (Japanese for "Hullo, stomach!")

Anyway, the days of wouldn't ships seem to have come back.

By the way, speaking of coming back, do you know that the average resident of the United States ate 11 lbs. less meat a year ago than he did 30 years ago?

WHAT ER SELL

When scientist puts you on the water-wagon, he makes it a joy-ride. Believe it or not believe it not, at the special invitation of one of those University chappies, we spent yesterday afternoon concentrating on water—Water—you know, that wet stuff you wash with.

He showed us all sorts of tricks, but when he began to produce some amazingly natural waves in a vest-pocket ocean it proved too much for us. With a faint hiccup, we staggered out into Caine Road.

KELLY'S DIARY.

February 9. Heard from Whatismaname about becoming a member of the Legislative Council. He's not too keen about it.

Expects to be in the next Honours List and thinks we might queer his pitch.

Gave some good advice. "Don't take too strong a line about economy or Shing Mun Dam. Nobody understands either and an open mind will enhance your reputation."

(What for, we wonder. Open-mindedness?)

BALD HUMOUR.

Somebody has discovered that bald men are funnier than those who have managed to keep their hair on.

We do not know how the discovery was made, but it is a long time since anyone tendered consolation to the bald, and we don't mind.

Educational and other experts, with fell intent, spend many hours devising intelligence tests for the young. It would be more useful to have a system of humour tests for the grown-up members of the population, so that we might know exactly where we stood in this column, being thin as a rake ourselves.

A column could be included in the census paper wherein the person under cross-examination would be invited to say whether his head is bald, hairy or covered with a wig. We are too well used to filling up inquisitive official forms to be offended at that.

"I'd love to, dear, but I promised Napoleon I'd take him to the movies this afternoon."

REALITIES AT GENEVA

PAUL BONCOUR SPEECH
ROUSES NAZI IRE

BRITISH DEMAND

London, Feb. 9.

M. Paul Boncour's speech at Geneva, winding-up the debate on the French disarmament plan, in which he maintained that despite the opposition of most nations, the French Plan was still the best, has provoked intense indignation in Germany.

This is most noticeable in the Nazi circles. The Hitler newspapers declare that France has obviously no intention of disarming or of granting equality to Germany. To-day's meeting at Geneva was curtailed in order to allow the drafting committee of the Disarmament Conference to pursue its work.

THORNY PROBLEM.

The thorny problem is the nature and the scope of the personnel of the body to be established to supervise the execution of the recommendations and to decide what is to be the status of the United States and Russian representatives.

A desire to see the Disarmament Conference speeded up was again expressed by Captain Anthony Eden, the British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, at Geneva to-day when the Commission met to consider the Conference agenda.

"We are becoming anxious at the slow progress of the Conference," he said.

A NEW PHASE.

"Unless substantial decisions can be reached within the next few weeks the prospects for the Conference must become jeopardised. Britain believes that the present session should mark an entry upon a new phase of the Conference, one of decisions. Governments must shoulder their responsibilities and face the realities."

Mr. Arthur Henderson, Chairman of the Conference, had earlier declared that there had been enough general discussion and that the time had come to get down to concrete proposals.

AIR PROPOSALS.

Questioned regarding the recent British suggestions for speeding up and making effective the programme of work at the Disarmament Conference, Mr. MacDonald, in the House of Commons, said that so far as the air was concerned it remained the practical and immediate objective of the Government to secure a reduction of the Air Forces of the leading Powers to the British level, to be followed by a further all-round reduction of one-third and the limitation of the unladen weight of military and naval aircraft.—British Wireless and Reuter.

COURT WATCHMAN GAOLED

THEFT OF SEIZED GOODS

A bold and ambitious attempt by a Supreme Court bailiff's watchman to spirit away the whole stock of a Chinese earthenware shop, seized under an order of the Court, was disclosed at the Central Magistracy to-day, when Ng Yu, the man in question, appeared before Mr. Schofield on a charge of larceny by bailie.

Ng Yu was charged with stealing 184 spittoons, 67 chetties, 11 basins, and 346 earthenware cash boxes. He pleaded guilty.

Det. Sergt. Kinnear said that, along with others not in custody, defendant removed the goods from a godown in Centre Street into another, the proprietor of which was without suspicion in view of the defendant's capacity as a bailiff's watchman.

Although the goods were of a bulky and cumbersome nature and entailed much labour in moving, their value amounted to less than $50.

Defendant, who admitted a previous conviction, less than three years ago also for larceny, was sentenced to four months' hard labour.

The mile long Lloyd Barrage at Sukkur, India, which harnesses the waters of the River Indus, has now been in operation for a year, and has resulted in a large increase in the area under irrigation. It took eight years to complete, and is seen above just before its opening.

RECORD FLIGHT FEATURES

ENGINE'S PERFECT PERFORMANCE

London, Feb. 9.

The Air Ministry to-day received from Squadron Leader Gayford the complete log of the 5,340 miles record non-stop journey made in the Fairey-Napier monoplane.

The log shows that very bad weather, including dust, haze, rain and heavy cloud, with poor visibility, was encountered over Africa, and during Tuesday night the airmen flew practically the whole time completely "blind".

Squadron Leader Gayford says the engine ran faultlessly for the 57 hours and 25 minutes they were in the air, and they did not experience one quail on its account throughout the whole flight.—British Wireless.

The Dean of Westminster described Galsworthy's life as freely spent in helping those in need and in the cause of peace and goodwill, and said his work had enriched the reputation and influence of English literature throughout the civilised world.—British Wireless.

The Chinese contend that the Agreement does not apply in the instance under consideration, in which, they assert, only a small detachment was transported from Nanking to Hangchow.

The Chinese also claim that the agreement whereby the Chinese troops were to remain "in their present position" was automatically cancelled when the Japanese troops withdrew and the situation was restored to normal.—Reuter.

GODOWN CO.'S LIABILITY

IMPORTANT POINT DECIDED

SPECIAL CLAUSE

A judgment of unusual interest to exporters and importers was delivered by the Pusan Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) at the Supreme Court this morning in the presence of a large number of solicitors prior to the consideration of the summary jurisdiction list.

The decision concerned a clause in a godown warrant as to whether the owners of a wharf were liable for the loss of certain packages which were stolen from their premises after they had been deposited there by a company.

The parties concerned in the case were Torbor and Company, plaintiffs, and the Ocean Steamship Co., Ltd. (Holt's Wharf) defendants, the former being represented by Mr. C. D'Almeida (Mr. Leo D'Almeida, snr.) and the defendants by Mr. M. M. Watson (Messrs. Johnson Stokes and Master).

THE JUDGMENT.

Delivering judgment his Lordship said:—I have put this case first on the list so as to deliver judgment on the preliminary question of law raised in respect of which argument was heard recently, and I have not thought it necessary to elaborate a formal judgment. The plaintiffs are a firm of merchants and the defendants are a registered company trading as warehousemen and wharfingers. The plaintiffs deposited a package with the defendant company for safe custody which the defendant company are unable to re-deliver.

The preliminary question raised is whether, under the terms of the special contract existing between the parties, which was set out in the godown warrant, the defendant company are relieved from liability for loss or damage for this package where such loss or damage has occurred in consequence of the negligence of their own employees.

SPECIAL CLAUSE.

The godown warrant contains the following clause:—"The Company will not be responsible for any package exceeding H.K. $250.00 in value, unless such value is declared on application for storage."

The package in question has been agreed to be $1,000 in value, which is over the named value in the clause, and the plaintiff firm omitted to make the required declaration. It was argued for the plaintiffs that the clause was not sufficiently explicit to exclude liability for the consequences of the defendant company's own negligence. It was suggested that if the words "in any way responsible" had occurred in the condition, or, for instance, "for any loss however caused or occurring" had occurred, then the defendant company might have been relieved of liability, but not otherwise.

For the defendant company it was argued that the only possible operation of the clause was to relieve the defendant company in respect of their own negligence, and that argument seems to me to be sound and acceptable. I notice that a similar clause is given in the Encyclopaedia of Forms and Statutes, volume 14, form 20, condition 4.

DEFENDANTS WIN.

I find that the defendants are protected from liability by the conditions of the special contract, and I give judgment for defendant on that issue with costs.

I understand that this matter concludes the whole matter, and that the parties will not call evidence in the action.

the Great Wall, report signs of activity in the Japanese lines, although the purport is not known.

The lull at Chinmenkow continues, although the Japanese military aeroplanes continue their daily reconnaissance, dropping bombs on what they believe to be the Chinese positions.

Japanese reinforcements are arriving at Manchang and Wangchilang Village near Shanhaikwan, where strong defence positions are being erected, while the enlistment of Chinese into Manchukuo regiments is reported from the Chinchow area.

The situation along the Jehol border is becoming increasingly critical. Japanese artillery have been active at Tungliao, though the firing appeared to be more in the nature of gunnery practice. Elsewhere, skirmishing continues daily. The probability of a failure of the last Japanese effort to bring the League round to their way of thinking at Geneva is thought likely to lead to orders for the invasion of Jehol to proceed.—Special.

DEBACLE OF THE CLUB

AMAZING GAME AT H.K.C.C.

FINE BOWLING BY NOMANBHOY

(By "The Stumper")

BY defeating the formidable Hong Kong C.C. last Saturday, the Indians' chances of retaining the Shield have been considerably improved. For thrills one would have to go far to see a better game. Nobody, least of all the Indians, I am sure, expected the strong Club batting to collapse for a mere 41 to 100 runs. Their first bowler, the Indians owed their victory, for he claimed five wickets for only 13 runs besides sending T.A. Pearce, K.A. Munro and O.E.C. Marton back to the pavilion with successive balls to perform the first "hat-trick" of the senior League during the current season.

THE Indian skipper won the toss and decided to send the Club in first. Thrills came almost at once. Owen Hughes was dropped off Pereira at slips, but he did not stay long, poking a ball to the same position off Bina in the next over. Hayward made a stubborn resistance against the Indians' attack, and returned to be lured to lift his bat. He stayed in long enough to see Pearce, Munro and Marton being dismissed with successive balls by Pereira, who was bowling at a great speed. In trying to hit the first bowler, Pearce was caught at mid-on, while Munro was sent back by a ball which was too fast for him. The last ball was a beauty. Marton, thinking it was going outside the off stump let it go past, but it broke in just enough to touch the off stump.

IF the champions thought victory was easy they were completely deceived. With this low score before them, they had to fight hard for every run and eventually won by only three wickets. A.C. Beck was obtaining a great pace off the pitch and was responsible for the dismissal of five Indian bowlers for only 10 runs. It was a hard battle all the way, as it was the Indians were all out for 11.

THE best bowling performance of the day, however, came from another quarter. A.T. Nomanbhoy, playing for the University against the Navy at King's Park, captured six wickets for only ten runs. It was a remarkable feat, and has not been surpassed in senior League cricket for a long time. Possessed of a few action, Nomanbhoy needs careful watching on his day, but has not come off recently. He was relegated to the second string a few weeks ago, but I am glad the University skipper has seen fit to reinstate him.

DUE chiefly to Nomanbhoy's effort, the Navy were dismissed for only 20 runs. With no athletics before me, I cannot say whether this is a record in senior League cricket, but I know there has not been a lower score for some years. The Navy was very weak, however, several members making their initial appearances in local League matches. The undergraduates won by ten wickets, thus registering their second successive victory.

VISITING the Civil Service C.C., the Kowloon C.C. were given a fright when, facing a total of 100, they lost seven wickets for only 61. F.S.V. Smith and G.C. Burnett then came to the rescue of their side, and looked off the necessary runs without further loss. The Kowloon men will have a lot to say regarding the domination of the Shield. They have jumped over a few stiff hurdles, but have yet to meet the Indians. This will take place next month and may prove to be the deciding game. It will be worth going far to see.

HERETO regarded as the best bat in the Second Division, the Indians jeopardized their chances by being held to draw by the Hong Kong C.C. last week. This game provided as much excitement as the senior match, and one could probably say that if it had lasted for another five minutes, the champions would have won. The Club had their last man in with over 20 runs to make, and way was palpably uncomfortable stumps were drawn.

REGARDING the drawing of stumps in February, I have spoken to the Hon. Secretary of the League, and he informs me that the time of drawing is 5.05 p.m. This should be remembered by team captains.

EASY TASK FOR THE BORDERERS

FORLORN QUEST OF THE CLUB

CAN THEY AVENGE LEAGUE DEFEATS?

IMPREATIVE NEED OF IMPROVED TEAM PLAY

THE PROSPECTS

TO-morrow's senior football clashes are but an encore to last Saturday's programme, except that the self same teams will be contesting for progress in the Senior Shield competition, instead of league points.

The programme, in fact, is a typical example of the long arm of coincidence. A week ago the Borderers and Club met for their second league encounter. To-morrow they fight again. The Navy and Police were antagonists for league honours seven days ago, and they give a repeat performance in twenty-four hours time. That the Club should run up against their big bogey in the Senior Shield will arouse the sympathy of many, for it means that their quest is almost hopeless.

Not by the wildest stretch of imagination, or the most generous reflection on the merits of the Club as a team, can one seriously anticipate their success against the 24th.

WHAT IS NECESSARY.

The soldiers have twice proved this season that they are too good for the civilians. Of course, alterations in the Club side, which, I believe, are being considered, may have some effect in the desired direction, although I am inclined to think that change in the personnel is not so necessary, as change in tactics on the part of the present team.

I have more than once this season endeavoured to analyse the Club eleven, and last week's showing did nothing to alter the views expressed. If anything they were emphasised. If they can possibly pull themselves together and become a unified team, with individualism reduced to the amentals, such as understanding between the players, are lacking. A forward line weakness must be rectified if the Navy are to retain any direct interest in the Shield.

Five games are scheduled in the Junior Shield competition, and one of them, as they say in Australia, is a "snifter." The Borderers and Royal Artillery, who are both in the running for runners-up of Division 2 meet at Soekunpoo.

GUNNERS' OPPORTUNITY.

And please don't take too much notice of the fact that on October 8, 1932 the Borderers beat the Artillery 4-1. The Artillery these days are an entirely different proposition. Since their second reverse at the hands of the 24th they have beaten the Athletic, the Lincolns and the Navy, and if they persist in the same type of game, they will probably win tomorrow.

Ground advantage to either side is negligible, and the outcome will depend entirely on a question of skill, plus adaptability to the conditions which always prevail in knock-out competition football.

EYES ON THE SHIELD—These four players will be taking a prominent part in the probable destination of the Senior Shield to-morrow when the South Wales Borderers and Club meet at the Happy Valley.

The players are (top) Jones, the "Swabs" crack forward, who scored four goals against the Club last week, (above) Strange the civilian team's captain, (opposite) Mullane, the Borderers' brilliant light back, and below, Padmore, the 24th's skillful centre-half.

L.C.D. of the game, namely as a means of creating constructive openings, then the Club might well give the Borderers something to think about.

WATCH JONES.

And then of course, there is the luisane fair regarding the activities of Jones, the "Swabs" inside left, who last week made rings round the defence. If the Club are to reduce the goal scoring potentialities of the Borderers to a minimum, they have got to police Jones as far as it is reasonable without leaving the rest of the forward unattended.

The Borderers will take the field full of confidence, and come what may, I expect them to win quite easily. They regained something like their old time form last Saturday, and it is fair to anticipate that this will be reproduced in the Shield tie.

The other senior Shield match is a bit of a poser. The Navy is now such a vastly different combination to that of a month ago, that anything might happen.

The Police cannot place too much reliance on the result of their league encounter. The Navy will, undoubtedly give a much improved display to-morrow, and the Police will have to show correspondingly enlightened football.

REPUTATIONS NOT ENOUGH.

The nauticals have been robbed of the services of that fine half back, Robertson, but Goodrich, his deputy, is well fitted for the job. Alterations in the team which failed a week ago are indicated, and probably some additional Berwick men will be found in the side.

They have come here with splendid reputations, but even reputations have a way of being useless if other en-

How Tsui Won't Win the Championship!

Amazing Exhibition of Futility

NEARLY BEATEN BY CAPT. CANNON

Loser's Remarkable Recovery

(By "VERITAS").

Faced with an opponent at the top of his form, yet persisting in his game of playing to the gallery, Tsui Wai-pui, one of the "fancied" for the Open Tennis Singles title this year, yesterday nearly came a cropper at the first fence, when taken to a three set match by Capt. P. S. Cannon.

Tsui deserved to lose. He allowed a 6-1 victory in the first set to go to his head, fell to relying on fancy strokes to give him winning points, and only after finding himself in reverse in the final set, forewent this untimely practice and settled down to serious tennis.

Displays such as this will do the young Chinese no good. He cannot afford to play about in tournament tennis any more than another player. He may possess the most complete range of strokes in Hongkong, but if he is going to abandon them for a few pretty-pretty, but totally ineffective shots, then their value is negligible.

Nobody is going to deny the usefulness of variation in strokes, but this variation has to be made in a subtle manner, and not into a mere display of ostentatious cleverness which leaves the performer open to a more deadly counter attack from the other side of the net.

TSUI OVERSHADOWED.

A big crowd was held spellbound by the match yesterday, for all credit is due to Capt. Cannon for the gallant manner in which he fought back after a severe reverse in the opening set, and for the way he seized his opportunities in a great effort to snatch the match.

In the second set Tsui was quite overshadowed. Cannon, with his masterly backhand drive (it is the soundest stroke I have seen among local players), continually defeated the Chinese in the rallies, polishing them off with ace shots which flew past the incoming Tsui.

Capt. Cannon is one of the few players in Hongkong who prefers to take the ball on the backhand. This is his strongest weapon, and for him, it was a thousand pities that he could not boast a similar forehead.

Even so his weakness was only the weakness of one who could not attack on this hand. But Cannon's great asset was his courtcraft, which was seen in its most effective form in the second set. He hardly ever attempted to hit really hard, but lured Tsui up to the net with short cut shots, and then passed him with delightfully placed balls.

When he went to the lead in the fifth game of the final set, Tsui was positively worried, and only a safety net cord shot, and a doubtful service decision in his favour allowed him to draw level, and from that point he played something like his true self. (Continued on Page 9.)

FOURTH "TEST" TO-DAY

HISTORICAL GAME PROMISED AT BRISBANE

THE fourth, and probably the most vital Test Match between Australia and England starts at Brisbane to-day, and despite the conciliatory notes which have been exchanged between the Australian Board of Control and the M.C.C., regarding the Body line bowling protest, the teams will enter the arena with this friction still in their minds.

At the time of writing neither team has been definitely selected, although it is probable that the English side will be constituted as follows: D.R. Jardine, R.E.S. Wyatt, G.O. Allen, Hammond, Sutcliffe, Ames, Lardood, Bowers, Leyland, Paynter and Verity.

The Australian eleven will certainly include some entirely new players, for both J.H. Fingleton and Clarry Grimmett have been dropped. If Ernest Bromley is finally chosen, his will probably be the most sensational introduction to Test cricket on record. It was only in December last that Bromley forced his way into the Victoria Inter-State team. Prior to that he had played in Pennant cricket, and had been such a successful bat and excellent field, that efforts were made to find him a place in the Victoria team last November.

BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT.

He achieved this ambition a month later, and since his first match has played six innings and scored no less than 645 runs. Bromley is only 22 years ago and was educated at the Christian Brothers' College, Perth.

In view of Oldfield's continued indisposition, H.S. Love is a certainty for wicket-keeping. The Australian team will be chosen from: W.M. Woodfull, W.H. Ponsford, Y.Y. Richardson, D.G. Bradman, E. Bromley, L. Darling, W.J. O'Reilly, S.J. McCabe, T. Wall, H. Ironmonger and H.S. Love. B. Triffin has already been selected as a third man. ## INCOGS & MAMAK DECISION

INFLUENCED BY NON-EXISTING RULE

CASE SHOULD BE RECONSIDERED

(By "Bully-Off")

ALTHOUGH hockey has come to the Colony's sports there seems to be a general lack of knowledge by players and umpires alike of the rules of the game. This was evidenced in the decision of the Mamak tournament committee in regard to the Incognitos. St. Andrew's match a fortnight ago. It will be remembered that the match was abandoned six minutes from time following the refusal of a spectator to leave the field when ordered to do so by the umpire and the respective captains, and an appeal meeting, the committee decided to allow the score at the time the game was abandoned, namely a goalless draw, to stand as the result.

AS I pointed out last week this decision is not in the best interests, for it penalises the Incognitos, and I suggested that a re-play take place. Apparently the Incognitos do not intend protesting against the decision of the committee their reason, according to our afternoon contemporary being that "they have abided by the official ruling of the English Hockey Association, which states that had one of the two teams concerned been leading by a goal to nil, then a replay would have been allowed."

HAD the writer taken the trouble to read the rules of the English Hockey Association, as contained in their official handbook, he would find that there is no such provision. In fact there is no ruling dealing with the abandonment of matches under any conditions, and therefore the suggested precedent, which it was claimed actuated not only the Mamak Committee in coming to their decision, but also prevented the Incognitos from appealing against it, does not, in fact, exist.

IN view of this the Committee's ruling is most unfortunate and unfair, and they have themselves created a precedent, without any authority of the body to which they show allegiance, which must in future cause disastrous invidiousness. What will the Committee do if a match is abandoned half way through because of the weather? I fail to see how they can make a distinction between such a case and the one under review, seeing that in neither instance are the teams in any way to blame. To save themselves from unfortunate situations in the future, the only thing left for the Mamak Committee to do is to repeal their original decision regarding the Incognitos-St. Andrew's tie and order a replay.

INCOGS DECIDE TO PROTEST

It was officially stated this morning that the Incognitos, had, after further consideration, decided to protest against the decision of their game with St. Andrews.

The case will be heard early next month.

I have noticed in many of the hockey games played in the Colony that only a very small percentage of corners result in goals. This is rather remarkable for if there is any understanding between forwards at least seven goals should be scored from every ten corners.

THE chief fault seems to lie in the reluctance of players to work in harmony in this matter. Many think the ball should be stopped dead, but that is not the case. The ball should be stopped either by hand or stick, not necessarily motionless. This gives the inners and the centre-forward opportunity to co-operate and the best way of making full use of corners is for the inside player to stop the ball and allow the centre-forward to take the shot at goal. Practise at this could take place a few minutes before the game starts if players are unable to get together at other times.

ONE cannot but admire the plucky way the C.B.A. have continued in the Caer Clark Cup competition and their draw with the Y.M.C.A. was fitting reward for weeks of perseverance, despite heavy defeats at the hands of other teams in the tournament.

THE K.I.T.C. are also coming into their own, but rather late in the season. They defeated the T.M.C. on Wednesday and as a result improved their position by six places. Good luck to them in the future.

IT is with regret I note the apparent falling off in the fixtures in the Mamak tournament. To-date only 138 of the 231 fixtures have been played and there are only another eleven games fixed for the current

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

This is the last of three articles by Mr. McKenney on the "Rule of Eleven."

Following are additional examples applying the rule of eleven.
As was the case in my previous article, South is the declarer, at no trump, North the dummy, West is the opening leader, and the card led is in parenthesis. East is the partner of the leader.

Example No. 3

Allowing partner to hold trick.

North—Dummy

K-6-4

West—Leader East—Partner

Q-10-8-(?) A-J-9-5

South—Declarer

3-2

West opens the seven spot. Applying the rule of eleven, seven from eleven leaves four. There is one in the dummy and three in East's hand, therefore the declarer holds no card higher than the seven spot.

If dummy plays a small card,
East should play the five spot, allowing his partner to hold the trick. The king will be captured on the next lead of the same suit by West.

Example No. 4

Refusing to play high third hand.

North—Dummy

K-8-4

West—Leader East—Partner

J-9-7-(6) A-10-5

South—Declarer

Q-3-2

West's opening is the six spot.
Six from eleven leaves five. There are two in the dummy and two in the East hand, therefore East knows the declarer holds one card higher than the six.

If dummy now plays the eight,
East should not play the ace, but should play the ten, which would force the declarer's queen, and in this manner the declarer would get only one trick.

If East were to go up with the ace, he knows that he is absolutely setting a trick in dummy for the declarer, and if the declarer does happen to hold the queen, he would be setting two tricks, as would be the case in this example.

Example No. 5

Where it works to the advantage of the declarer.

North—Dummy

K-J-6

West—Leader East—Partner

Q-9-7-(5) 10-3-2

South—Declarer

A-8-4

West opens the five spot. Dummy should play the six spot, which forces East's ten.

The declarer now wins with the ace and can safely take the finesse, as by applying the rule of eleven —five from eleven leaves six—he knows that, as there are three in dummy and declarer holds two and the one that East held was forced on the first trick, the queen is in the West hand.

ENGLAND-BRAZIL FLIGHT IN 82 HOURS

MOLLISON SETS RECORD

SPLENDID FEAT

London, Feb. 9.

Mr. J. A. Mollison is now over the South Atlantic heading for the Brazilian coast from West Africa.

In his small British Puss-Moth cabin-acroplane, with a Gipsy Major 130-horse-power engine, he hopes by his flight, begun in England, to reach South America in three and half days thus lowering the record of four and half days over the same course from Paris, made recently by the French three-engined machine.

Mollison left England at eight o'clock on Monday morning, landed at Barcelona, 700 miles distant, in the evening, flew through the night to Agadir, 1,050 miles further on, and continued on Tuesday morning to Villa Cisneros, another 650 miles, arriving at Senegal, after a further 670 miles flight, early on Wednesday.

After sixteen hours out of his machine, during which he slept for only six hours, Mollison set off in the moonlight at one o'clock this morning on the 2,000 miles Transatlantic flight to Port Natal. He hoped to get there in 18 hours.

Six hours after leaving he was sighted by a ship 700 miles on his course, going well.

SAFELY OVER.

Later.

Mollison arrived at Port Natal

at 6.20 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time, well within the time he set himself and thus completing his third remarkable flight in less than a year.

His journey from England to Port Natal occupied him almost exactly three days and ten hours, easily beating the French record.

BEATS FRENCH RECORD.
The French machine, the giant monoplane Arc-en-Ciel, crossed the Atlantic in 14 hours 27 minutes, compared with Mollison's 17 hours, 30 minutes, but the flight from France took four days and a half, compared with Mollison's eighty-two hours.

It is, of course, pointed out that the French flight was more in the nature of a survey flight than was Mollison's.

In eleven months, Mollison has flown both the North and South
